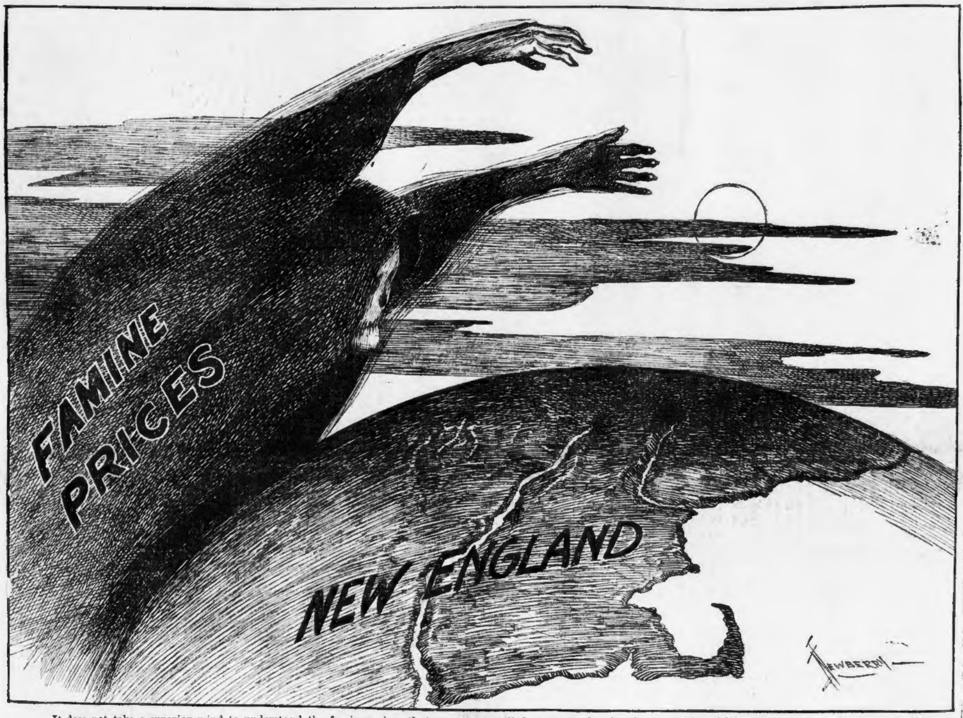
THE REAL CAMPAIGN ISSUE



It does not take a superior mind to understand the famine prices that we are compelled to pay to-day for the necessaries of life. Talk to your wife about it, talk to your neighbors about it—they all understand it. The grasping trusts are behind the high prices. There is no lack of production, no scarcity of food or of coal or of meat.

The corporations that control these commodities have boosted the prices and they are responsible for the big bills you have to pay to-day for what you eat, what you wear, the coal you burn, the milk you drink and other absolute necessaries of life.

SITUATION NOW NEARLY NORMAL, SAY FINANCIERS

Marked Renewal of Confidence Shown and Action of the Clearing Houses in Big Cities Is Expected to Afford Ample Relief for Any Possible Temporary Tightness of Money.

Clearing houses in Boston and other large cities throughout the country to-day voted to issue clearing house certificates to banks, as a move to further increase the confidence of depositors and show that the financial situation is gradually assuming normal conditions. The feeling of unrest is practically over, banking men declare. Every hour they see the situation clearing.

The ruling of the Boston Clearing House Association will go into effect at once. The meeting was held at the Clearing House to-day, and was presided over by Franklin Haven of the Merchants Bank.

It was voted to issue certificates to banks on application, on collateral approved by a committee composed of Daniel G. Wing of the First National, James P. Stearns of the Shawmut, A. L. Ripley of the State, Thomas P. Beal of the Second and John P. Lyman of the Webster and Atlas.

CALL FOR HIGH INTEREST.

Certificates to the extent of 75 per cent. of the market value of the approved collateral may be issued at the rate of 7.3 per cent. interest. The rate was placed at this high figure in order that the certificates may be retired at the earliest possible moment.

While the action is taken as a precautionary measure, the issue of certificates was also made necessary by the action of New York and other cities, otherwise those cities that have issued certificates would draw on Boston for cash for what Boston owes them without paying in cash what Boston is owed.

This is the third time that the local Clearing House has found it expedient to issue certificates. It was done before in 1873 and again in 1893.

ACT IN LEADING CITIES.

By this action Boston banks will be kept strong in currency.

The Pittsburg Clearing House Association has also voted to-day to issue certificates to relieve the financial situation in that city. New Orleans has voted to issue certificates to-morrow.

Cleveland, Cincinnati, Chicago, St. Louis, Philadelphia, Indianapolis and Milwaukee have already taken action.

New York dispatches show that in that city to-day there is much more confidence on the part of depositors, and little anxiety is being shown. Some few depositors, still timid from happenings of last week, are after their money, but the statements of men high in the world of finance have done much to quiet the great majority.

Archbishop John J. Farley, speaking to business men, told them that the financial ship is strong and able to weather the storm. He said to them:

ARCHBISHOP CONFIDENT.

"I deem it my duty to say to you, apropos of business disturbances which have excited the city during the past few days, that I have confidence in the solvency of the banks, and that we should be ready to express ourselves in this sense to the people that we may allay the panicky sentiment which constitutes the real danger, if there be any, of the situation.

"I have watched the recent occurences carefully and I have taken counsel with leading public and business men, all of whom conform my own belief that the various fuduciary institutions are sound and that the money deposited in them is safe. But any set of banks at any time could be embarrassed by a general run on them involving demand for the funds which have been safely invested, but are not immediately available.

"Although I am the custodian of several parcels of funds deposited in the banks and trust companies, I have not at any time felt obliged to call for them during this excitement.

"Our vessel is passing through a storm, but she's staunch, well able to ride the waves and strong to stand up against the winds. All we need is to do our share in dissuading the passengers from jumping overboard or scutting the ship."

PLENTY FOR PAYROLLS.

Bishop Potter likewise came out with a strong statement advising people to be calm because the country was solvent and the banks were sound. In nearly all the New York churches yesterday preachers exhorted their parishioners not to be alarmed.

In Pawtucket, R. I., where there had been anxiety shown by the workingmen and women who had small sums in some of the banks on which there was demand for payment, clergymen yesterday preached sermons that did much to quiet the unrest. As a result there were very few people gathered at any of the institutions to-day. All the banks took advantage of the ninety-day clause.

It was announced that there was plenty of money on hand to meet the payrolls of to-day and to-morrow and that the deposits had generally exceeded the amounts withdrawn.

Chicago dispatches say that despite the notice of the clearing house committee that the banks were as sound a s the Rock

MACHINE RUSE TO BEAT MORAN BEGINS TO-DAY

EXPOSURE OF PLAN TO TAMMANYIZE CITY UPSETS DENNISON ADHERENTS.

Consternation has seized upon Mayor Fitzgerald and the Democratic city machine, because of the exposure in the BOSTON SUNDAY AMERICAN of the Mayor's plan to use Boston's army of municipal employes to canvass the voters of the city in the interest of Joseph A. Dennison, the Fitzgerald-Coakley-Doyle candidate for District Attorney.

Under orders from Mayor Fitzgerald, William F. McClellan, who is the nominal head of the Democratic City Committee, but who has no more power of the committee than former Superintendent of Supplies Michael J. Mitchell had in the purchase of city supplies, hastened to deny that an attempt to "Tammanyize" Boston was to be made.

McClellan Gives Out Denial.

Even while President McClellan was issuing the Mayors denial, fifty of the city employes were gathered in one ward committee headquarters, under orders from their department heads, to receive instructions in regard to the canvass.

The denial issued through Mr. McClellan was as follows:

"We have a system of canvassing the voters, but the work will be done by members of the ward committees, and the city employes, as reported, will have nothing to do with it. The same system has been in vogue for years, but we have improved on the methods—that is all there is in the yarn."

The utter ridiculousness of the denial was at once seen from the fact that there are but 301 Democratic ward committeemen in the city. That these 301 men could canvass, or that anyone could expect them to canvass Boston's 110,000 voters, or even the 80,000 Democratic and unenrolled voters of the city, in four days, is absurd, and a little reflection would have convinced the nominal head of the city committee of the absurdity of issuing such a statement.

May Abandon Plan.

Democratic ward leaders said to-day, that because of the exposure of the Mayor's plan, they expected to receive orders that the canvass would be called off. The Mayor has been advised that Tammany methods will never work in Boston, but instead will react upon the persons employing them.

To-day's developments are anxiously awaited by the ward committee leaders and the employes who have been ordered to report to-night. They expect to see the whole scheme called off.

RATE TO MILK TRUST 1 CENT; TO FARMERS, 8

ASTONISHING CHARGE OF RAILROAD DISCRIMINATION MADE BY WORCESTER MEN.

One cent per can for transportation to Boston is all that is being charged milk contractors by the railroads for distances which cost the farmers eight cents per can, according to the declaration made to the Railroad Commissioners to-day by Attorney Charles W. Wood, chairman of a committee from the Worsecester Milk Producers' Association.

Mr. Wood was speaking as attorney for the complainants at a hearing before the commissioners on the petition of the Worcester organization for more equable milk rates to Boston. The petitioners asked the privilege of having their milk transported to Boston on the railroads at a price not out of proportion to those paid by the big milk contractors.

Room Filled with Farmers.

When the hearing opened the room was filled with farmers from Worcester County and other districts, representing the Worcester Milk Producers' Association, the Milk Producers' Co-operative Association and independent interests. Representing the producers, with Attorney Wood, were

BANKS TO-DAY STRONG

Clearing House Certificates and Delay in Withdrawals Avert Crisis.

STOCKS SHOW FAIR GAINS

of Gibraltar, there were many people waiting in line early to-day at many of the downtown banks. One hundred and fifty policemen have been ordered on special duty in the banking district.

Burglars Flock to Gotham.

One thing which had hitherto escaped notice was the fact that the withdrawal of savings in New York has caused burglars from all parts of the country to flock to that city in the expectation of robbing many houses.

Chief of the Detective Bureau McCafferty has been compelled to send out numberless warnings to those who are keeping their money hidden at home. Many arrests on suspicion have been made.

NEW YORK STOCKS SHOW ADVANCES; BANKS ARE FIRM

By Boston American Leased Wire.

NEW YORK, Oct. 28.—With the early quotations on the stock exchange showing improvement of from one to three points, and with the runs on New York banks nearly over, financiers to-day find the crisis past.

First prices at the Stock Exchange: Union Pacific started 1¼ higher; Northern Pacific, Union Pacific 1½ up; Amalgamated active at 1½ advance; American Smelting up 2 points. Elsewhere among the standard issues the gains were only fractional. After ten minutes of trading the industrial list remained strong, but there was a tendency toward irregularity in the railway list.

Some Depositors in Line.

Early to-day it became apparent that the public has grown considerably calmer over Sunday, and the financial situation has resumed a normal aspect.

There are still many depositors uneasy about their money in the trust companies. A long line of men and women depositors spent all day yesterday and all of last night in front of the Lincoln Trust Company, at Fifth avenue and Twenty-fourth street, waiting for the paying teller to open his window to-day. This line, however, was less in extent than it has been for several days, and the run on that institution is practically at an end.

So far as the Trust Company of America and its chief branch, the Colonial, are concerned, the obvious determination of J. P. Morgan and other financiers to put unlimited millions in cash to maintain its solvency has completely restored the confidence of its depositors.

Bankers See Benefit.

William H. S. Wood, president of the Bowery Savings Bank, who predicted the panic of last week more than three months ago, declared to-day that the worst is over.

"Tell the people that the banks are the places for their money.

"Tell the people who have money in the banks to leave it there. It is safe there if they can be made to reason.

Andrey Mills, president of the Dry Dock Savings Bank, said:

"There can be no doubt in the mind of any sane person that the financial hysteria through which we have just passed will be of lasting benefit, not only to New York city, but to the country at large as well."

Delay Withhdrawals.

The Cleveland, Ohio, Clearing House Association has decided to issue clearing house certificates if such action is found necessary. At the suggestion of the association, the savings banks and trust companies to-day put in effect the time notice clause on all withdrawals of savings accounts over $50. Simular action has been taken in Cincinnati.

At St. Louis it is announced that thirty to sixty days' notice is necessary to withdraw savings funds.

At Pittsburg it has been decided to keep the Stock Exchange closed for another day.

Small runs were started on the Northern Bank, at Broadway and Fourth street and the Broadway Trust Company at Broadway and Eighth street. It was announced by the officials of these banks that they were amply able to take care of themselves and would need no outside help.

LONDON SHIPPING GOLD TO NEW YORK; CONSOLS IN SLUMP

Special Cable to Boston American.

LONDON, Oct. 28.—Arrangements already made in this city for shipping gold to New York and the expectation that further large amounts will be sent to that centre from here have caused a less optimistic feeling regarding the local monetary situation here.

As a result, consols for both money and account declined 3.16 as compared with Saturday's last price to 82 9-16 and 82⅝, respectively.

The American department has advanced sharply, influenced both by the gold engagement and by the manner in which Secretary of the Treasury Cortelyou and New York leading financiers have met and overcome the monetary crisis at America's commercial centre.

LEAVE DEPOSITS IN THE BANKS, URGES GOVERNOR HIGGINS

PROVIDENCE, R. I., Oct. 28.—Governor Higgins came to the rescue of the banks to-day in a public statement which, he hopes, will aid in reassuring depositors and preventing a further run to-day. He says:

"I consider the run on the banks very unreasonbale and unfair. The banks in this State are, in my opinion, in as sound and as prosperous a condition as any in the country. If the depositors would only leave their money in the banks there would be absolutely no danger whatever.

"No bank or savings institution can possibly pay out all deposits without some previous notice, as most of these deposits are invested in valuable securities in order to earn the interest which is paid to the depositors.

"There is no disturbance whatever in business, and no real trouble or difficulty in banking circles of Rhode Island."

Through the action of clergymen in Pawtucket yesterday in appealing to their congregations not to become panic-stricken and draw their savings from the banks at a time when it was necessary to keep money in circulation, it is believed that the fears of depositors have been quieted.

Only a small crowd of people gathered in front of the Slater Trust Company today. At 9 o'clock there were twenty-nine persons in line, most of them women and of Greek and Polish nationality. Within half an hour the line swelled to fifty-five money-seekers.

It was announced that the bank would enforce the ninety-day rule, and when this was explained, some of them gave the notice, while others simply stepped out of line.

MOVE TROLLEY LINE OFFICES TO NEW HAVEN

Mellen's Road Will Economize in Managing All Subsidiary Companies.

PROVIDENCE, R. I., Oct. 28.—In carrying out its policy of systematizing all of the departments of its subsidiary companies, the New York, New Haven & Hartford Railroad will shortly remove the more important branches of the Rhode Island Company, which is the holding company for the New Haven's trolley lines, to New Haven.

The resignation of Comptroller R. W. Shepherd, who resigned about the first of the month and who at present is employed in special work for the railroad company, has hastened this policy. All this week agents of the New Haven corporation have been at work in the offices of the comptroller on the sixth floor of the Union Trust Company building, and it is understood that out of a force of thirty-five clerks employed in the office now, but twenty will be retained at work in this city. The others have been given an opportunity to accept clerical positions in New Haven.

Among the chief persons concerned by the new arrangement is E. W. Grilley, the freight auditor of the Rhode Island Company, who with his four assistants will go to New Haven to do the same work.

The clerks in the office believe that when all the changes under consideration are made the force will be practically reduced to the money or fare counters, transfer and mileage clerks, and the checkers of conductors' reports.

STARVING CREW RESCUED AT SEA

Becalmed off Cape Maysi, Cuba, seven starving Bermuda turtle fishermen were found by Captain Asa F. Davison of the United Fruit Company's steamship Admiral Dewey, who brought in the news of their rescue to-day.

The Admiral Dewey sighted a small schooner flying signals of distress last Wednesday. A boat put off from the schooner with two emaciated sailors at the oars. They told a story of having been blown off their course and then becalmed for days and days. For a long time they were on short rations, and for the preceding three days had had scarcely anything to eat or drink. They expected to perish, when the Dewey providentially hove in sight.

Captain Davison gave them a square meal, two dozen bunches of bananas and a supply of other food and water.

TO SUE CARL HAU'S LAWYER FOR LIBEL

Berlin, Oct. 28.—An interesting sequel to the Hau trial is the report that Olga Molitor, the sister-in-law of the man condemned to death for the murder of his mother-in-law, intends to bring suit against Dr. Dietz, the attorney for Hau, on the ground that the lawyer in his interviews since the sensational trial came to an end has hinted that the fatal shot was fired by Miss Molitor, and that the latter and not Hau was the guilty person.

LABOR UNIONS ADOPT PLANS TO FIGHT DRAPER

WAR ON CZAR OF HOPEDALE TO BE DIRECTED ALONG SYSTEMATIC LINES.

This will be a busy week for the labor union men, for at a council held yesterday in Wells Memorial Hall it was decided that the war on Lieutenant Governor Draper will be carried on with a vengeance.

The various vice-presidents were instructed to arrange a series of anti-Draper meetings in his territory and each was told to have as many meetings as possible to explain to the voters why the state branch convention had condemned the Lieutenant-Governor as an enemy of labor and to tell them the story of the labor troubles at Hopedale.

The board meeting yesterday also directed Secretary Treasurer D. D. Driscoll to immediately issue another circular letter to all the labor unions on the subject. Another appeal for donation to the Frank K. Foster testimonial fund will also be made.

Meetings arranged by the Boston officers will be held to-morrow night at Allston and Friday at 14 Broadway extension. Thursday night the Fitchburg C. L. U. will hold a mass meeting in that city. President Edward Cohen of Lynn and Secretary Treasurer D. D. Driscoll of the state branch and Arthur M. Huddell of the Engineers' Union will be speakers at all three rallies.

While the greater portion of yesterday's meeting was devoted to the anti-Draper campaign work much other important businesss was acted upon. It was directed that the new legislative committee hold a meeting at Wells Memorial building Thursday night to begin the work of arranging for the presentation and advocacy of labor's bills to the next year's Legislature.

FRANK CHANCE GETS LIMIT IN SALARIES

CHICAGO, Oct. 28.—Nobody knows what Frank Chance draws down as manager of the Cubs, but President Murphy has stated for publication that he gets more money than any other player ever did in the big leagues, and that means in the country.

His salary as a player is large, for he is one of the stars of the game. Added to that is his salary as manager of the club, and besides this are the dividends he receives for the 100 shares of stock he holds in the club, presented to him by Charles P. Taft when the club was originally purchased from James A. Hart.

Chance doesn't have to work during the Winter for a living. His parents were wealthy, his father having been a banker at Fresno, and at his death he left Frank something over $20,000 to begin life with. Chance is leberal spirited, but never is wasteful and foolish with his money, and the result is that to-day he is one of the wealthiest ball players in the country. He is a stockholder in a number of large corporations in this country.

Actions speak louder than words.
John B. Moran's ACTIONS have prevented the grafters from stealing City Hall.

The archbishop will leave his present residence at No. 75 Union Park street as soon as the new house has been put in readiness to receive him.

LITTLE MARCEL WAVE CAUSES DIVORCE SUIT

Beautiful Woman Wears Veil for Husband, but Insists on Combing Hair Own Way.

CAN'T STOP BEING PRETTY

LOSE HAIR WAVE? PREFERS DIVORCE

Mrs. Agnes Lavelle, who would rather sever her marital ties than to comb out the tiny marcel wave, which, her husband says, makes all men stare at her.

NEW YORK, Oct. 28.—Mrs. Agnes Lavelle has been swept into the divorce court by a tiny marcel wave. Protesting against the decree of her husband that the little marcel, which, he said, made all the men look at her, must go, she declares she will never comb it out and that she will fight to the bitter end for the privilege of wearing what she pleases and being just as attractive as she says God intended her to be. Mrs. Lavelle is so beautiful that her jealous husband has made her wear a veil to cover her face from the gaze of men on New York streets. So far did he carry his jealousy, she says, that she always walked with her eyes fixed on the asphalt pavement. "I looked so hard at the front of my shirtwaist that I got a headache," she says.

Makes Her Wear Black.

"He was madder than ever. 'The next time you wear that red dress and the spangles on your hat I'll sue you for divorce,' he said. 'The whole streetful was staring at you. Take off that bunch of scarlet duds and climb into your black alpaca.'

"Well, it was pretty hard, but I wore black for six months, until I felt like a funeral, and then he says, "Put on a veil. They're still making too much fuss when you go swaggering, like a flirting widow, down the street.

"I put on a veil, but he said he could see through it, and made me get another so thick I couldn't see through it myself, and when I staggered in the dark he said I must have been out with a jolly crowd of men who bought me champagne, and he forced me to stay home, black dress and all.

Calls Her "False Woman."

"And then one night he came home and looked at me reading a prayer book in the sackcloth rocking chair, and he said: 'Now I've found out why you aren't true to me. I've discovered the thing that makes you what you really are, false woman. You go comb out that marcel wave.'

"I got out of the chair and I flung the book in his face. 'I won't comb out that marcel wave, you—you miserable man!' I said. 'But I'll get out of this house this minute, and you can't get me back into it unless you bring me in my casket.' And I ran into the bedroom and jumped into my cream-colored dress with the spangles, and I put on the picture hat with the green plumes, and, throwing the satine automobile cloak across my arm and catching up the pearl-handled umbrella, that everybody says makes me look like an actress, I gave him a sniff and went down the stairs and got a position as cloak model next day."

300 PERISH IN FIRE; 1000 DIE IN FLOODS

300 SPANIARDS TRIBE'S SLAVES

By Boston American Leased Wire.

MADRID, Oct. 28.—A sensational story is told here by a Spaniard named Bulguera, just arrived from the Philippines. Bulguera declares that when the Spanish cruiser Reina Marie Cristina foundered off the coapst of Bulacon province, all of her crew of 627 men were thrown into the sea. More than 300 managed to reach shore and were captured by the Tagalos tribe and taken to the island of San Juan, Delmont, where they have remained as slaves.

Bulguera says that he escaped with a party of ninety men in June last, but every man except himself were drowned in an attempt to swim a stream.

INDOOR BASEBALL RULES.

"The Official Indoor Baseball Guide for 1908" is the title of the last issue of Spalding's Athletic Library. It contains the official rules, articles on the origin and progress of the game, executive committee's report, suggestions for umpires, art of batting, and complete data about the game. The book is fully illustrated, with the officers of the Indoor Association, and teams from all sections of the country, no less than fifty groups appearing in fine half-tone form. A diagram of the floor for playing indoor baseball also serves to illustrate the different rules.

POSTOFFICE SAFE WRECKED BY BURGLARS

AVON, Oct. 28.—With a daring that has spread terror in small towns throughout this section, professional safe blowers wrecked the postoffice safe at Avon early to-day, with two charges of nitro-glycerine.

When discovered and fired upon by Dr. R. A. Elliot, who, with his wife, saw the burglars at work from their home near by, they stood in the road and exchanged shots.

"I saw you; we'll be over there."

Standing in the dim light of the public square, where he was on guard, one of the gang, a tall, athletic fellow, who was giving orders to the men inside, shouted this reply to the shots fired at him by Dr. Elliot, who with his wife bravely held their place in a window not over 500 feet from where the burglars were at work, and were fired at by the robbers.

It was not until the man in command of the safe blowing gang heard Dr. Elliot telephone an alarm to his fellow-townsmen that the burglars deserted their job, being unable to get into the inside box of the safe. They secured but a few pennies for their work.

FINED $50 FOR NON-SUPPORT

Charged by his wife, Theresa, with neglecting to support her for the past six months, Martin Andrew Carroll was found guilty by Judge Joseph R. Churchill in the Dorchester Municipal Court to-day and fined $50. He appealed and was held in $300 bonds. Carroll pleaded not guilty. He said he was a shoemaker and had no steady employment for months. He has travelled about Massachusetts and New Hampshire, but could not get a steady job.

The Carrolls were married six years ago and have two children.

WANT MAN TO MEET O'BRIEN

The National Athletic Club will hold a show in the Auditorium in Portland, November 11. Freddie O'Brien, the Chelsea bantam, who is being sidetracked by a big bunch of top-notchers, has been selected as one of the stars of the evening. The management of the club has been trying to sign Kid Dufresne of Lewiston to meet O'Brien but Dufresne remains silent.

If Dufresne does not accept the offer made him, the club will bring Joe Wagner who recently bested Dufresne, over from New York to meet O'Brien. Four good six round bouts will be put on by the manager of the club at their first show.

Insane Impulse Led Day to Kill Himself, Declare Physicians

FAMILY WANT INVESTIGATION, SAYING THAT THERE WAS NO MOTIVE FOR THE RASH ACT.

An insane impulse, due to mental bewilderment, is declared by City Hospital physicians to have been the cause of the suicide of Dr. Albert Cushman Day of the hospital staff, whose body will be taken to his grief-stricken bride and mother late to-day.

Facing discharge at the hospital, with his income cut off by his family, after the exposure of his marriage secret, he went to Pine Grove Parkway and killed himself. That is the theory of the physicians at the hospital. Nobody has yet been able to advance a better one, based upon any known facts. The young physician's family consider this theory as too flimsy, and they insist that there be a thorough investigation.

"He was an impetuous young man," declared one of the officials at the hospital to a BOSTON AMERICAN reporter to-day. "He was informed that stories were being circulated here about his relations with Miss Callahan—or Mrs. Day, as it turned out. He came here, saw the newspapers and then went into the country to try to straighten out his predicament in his own mind. He was bewildered mentally and that led him to commit suicide."

Family Asks Investigation.

Dr. Day's family cannot understand how, in such a case, he would have had the revolver handy to end his own life. Since they know of no motive that would lead him into the act, they insist that there be an investigation.

With the arrival of Day's brother-in-law from New York to-day, the news leaked out that, simultaneously with the identification of the young physician's body at the City Hospital morgue Saturday afternoon, three letters arrived at the hospital addressed to him.

Two of them were opened by Dr. Smith. One was from the young bride—formerly Miss Estelle Maud Callahan, the "Gibson girl" nurse—and was full of endearing sentences. There was evidently no cloud on her mind.

The second was from Mrs. Gustavus Wilson, his sister in Brooklyn, saying that everything was satisfactory there, and that they were anxiously waiting for news from him as to what was known in Boston.

A short while before shooting himself, Doctor Day wired to his bride: "Resign. Folks here are wise to our marriage. Discharge will come anyway. CUSH."

City Hospital authorities admit that they heard stories of his engagement to another girl, but they refuse to connect that with his act.

Neither the police nor the hospital authorities have been able to find where Day stayed Friday night. He arrived here early in the evening, but nobody has been found who saw him between then and the time his body was found.

Comes to Claim Body.

Gustavus Wilson, the husband of Dr. Albert Cushman Day's sister, arrived in Boston to-day to claim the body of the young physician. He came in answer to the following telegram from Dr. Henry Holt, assistant superintendent of the hospital:

"It is essential that some member of deceased's family come to Boston to arrange for the funeral. Answer when to expect same."

This message was in reply to a telegram from Dr. Day's sister, who directed that the body be sent to the physician's old home in Brooklyn.

The body, which is now in the chapel of the City Hospital morgue, will be taken to Brooklyn late this afternoon.

An autopsy performed by Medical Examiner William MacDonald disclosed the fact that only one bullet, which pentrated the heart, took effect. This gives rise to the theory that Dr. Day fired the revolver once to test it, so as to make sure that the shot would be fatal, for the revolver found by his side had two empty cartridges and the boys who found the body heard two shots.

Suicide, Say Police.

There is no question in the minds of the police or the hospital authorities that Dr. Day committed suicide. There is no circumstance, except the apparent lack of motive, to dispute this. The boys heard two shots and very shortly afterwards found the body. They saw no evidence of anybody having run away. The revolver lay at his side. Dr. Day's vest had been opened and his shirt laid aside, so that the revolver would touch the flesh over his heart. It is inconceivable, the police say, that it could have been a case of murder.

The hospital authorities believe they have convinced Gustavus Wilson of this. Mr. Wilson said, however:

"My wife and her family are unwilling to believe that he killed himself, and they will probe the matter to the end."

A New York dispatch says that Mrs. Wilson and Dr. Day's bride cannot help suspecting that the young physician was slain.

"My brother and his wife were exceedingly happy," said Mrs. Wilson at her home at No. 327 Pearl street, Brooklyn. "There was not the slightest reason why he should kill himself. Being a physician, it is hard for us to believe he would shoot himself.

Day Was Overworked.

"I recall the night he and his bride came here. They spoke about doctors committing suicide, and my brother remarked that it was strange that any of them ever sought violent death when drugs can put one out of the way so easily. He said that he would never think of killing himself, and, if he did, using a revolver would be the last thing he would dream of.

"He wanted the marriage kept secret. Probably stories in the newspapers that he and his bride came to New York on the same boat without being married upset him. I am sure my mother's displeasure at first about the wedding did not prompt him to end his life. If he did commit suicide it may be that his mind was affected from overwork. He told me he was worn out."

About the time that Dr. Day killed himself his bride received a telegram from him advising her to resign from the hospital, and this is one of the many elements of mystery in the case.

HATTIE CALLAHAN, SISTER OF BRIDE, TELLS OF WEDDING

Miss Hattie Callahan, sister of Mrs. Cushman Day, and the only witness to the ceremony, is a telegrapher in the Winthrop office, and handled all the matter on the famous Susan Geary dress suit case mystery.

"Dr. Day and Estelle," she said, "had been engaged for some time, and everybody at the hospital knew the attachment that existed between them. They had been planning to be married in April, when the doctor finished his post-graduate course at the hospital. Later they decided to marry at once and, as both were given a leave of absence, fixed upon that time as the date of their wedding and also to enjoy a honeymoon at the home of Dr. Day's sister in Brooklyn.

"My sister took me into the secret, but I was not to say a word to mamma. I promised I would keep the secret and all precautions were made. Wednesday afternoon I met my sister at the Relief Hospital and helped her to dress in her bridal gown. We went to the North station and met Dr. Day about 2 o'clock. Together we went to Somerville and went to the home of the Rev. W. Sherman Thompson, the pastor of the Prospect Hill Congregational Church.

"The reason we went to Mr. Thompson was because he had been our pastor in East Boston when he was the pastor of the Baker Memorial Church, and it was he who buried my father. I was the only witness."

INSANITY LED DAY TO COMMIT SUICIDE, DECLARES WIDOW

NEW YORK, Oct. 28.—Prostrated with grief, Mrs. A. Cushman Day, widow of the young doctor found a suicide in the West Roxbury woods Saturday, is at the home of her husband's mother, Mrs. Livia Day, in Brooklyn. Here neither the widow nor the mother of the dead doctor can be seen, both being deep in grief over the death of the one so dear to them.

Mrs. Day, who was Miss Estelle Maud Callahan, a nurse in the Relief Hospital in Boston, believes that, if her husband killed himself, it was while he was temporarily insane through illness contracted while caring for scarlet fever patients, his condition being aggravated with rumors in circulation in Boston in connection with his secret marriage to her. It was because of these reports that he left her in New York to return to Boston.

Mrs. Livia Day, the doctor's mother, learned of the marriage of her son for the first time when the news was broken to her that he was a suicide. She is in a serious condition at her home and is unable to account for her son's strange deed.

MILWAUKEE VOTE ILLEGAL, SAYS SMALL

CHICAGO, Oct. 28.—Former President S. J. Small of the telegraphers to-day issued a statement declaring every act of the Milwaukee special convention of operators to be illegal, and styling the election of W. W. Beattie of Washington as president a "childish" move, because Beattie already held that office by virtue of Small's suspension.

He also calls the appointment of a committee to confer with the Order of Railway Telegraphers a "ludicrous and humiliating" effort to get a sister organization to adopt them, now that their troubles have overwhelmed them. Small says he will attend the next regular convention in June.

In Chicago it is believed the committee named to confer in New York with the officials of the Postal and the Western Union will bring about an agreement for the definite ending of the strike. Officials of the Western Union announced to-day that the branch offices in Chicago will be reopened at once.

Heath & Co. of Boston.

Faith.

Faith, when once established, cannot be easily shaken, and the faith exhibited by the multitudes of the earth in the curative qualities of Dr. Burkhart's Vegetable Compound is based upon the conviction that it will free the body from all disease. Last year 13,500,000 afflicted who took this famous remedy expressed an absolute faith in its healing powers, and they have freely given their testimonial to verify their statements. It cures ailments of the nerves, stomach, liver, blood and kidneys, such as rheumatism, catarrh, neuralgia, constipation, sick headache, female troubles, erysipelas, etc. It reorganizes the entire system, and by implanting in the body a vital health it removes disease with its evil effects. Thirty days' treatment 25c. All druggists.

PLAN BILLIARD TOURNEY.

NEW YORK, Oct. 28.—It is probable that the only national tournament for professionals played in the United States will be held in this city during the first week in January. With Sutton and Schaefer deciding the 18.1 and 18.2 balk line championships in Chicago, it will be impossible to get those two players to come East until the middle of December, which is considered too close to the holidays. A meeting of the leading professionals will shortly be held, when arrangements will be made for the new 14.1 balk line tournament.

RATE TO MILK TRUST 1 CENT; TO FARMERS 8

Astonishing Charge of Railroad Discrimination by Worcester Men.

HEARING IS ON TO-DAY

Vice-President Jonas Bemis of the Milk Producers' Co-operative Association and Secretary Walter Conners. The railroads were represented by Attorneys Frank A. Farnum of the New York, New Haven & Hartford, Drisco of the Boston & Albany, Berry of the Boston & Maine and Hanley of the Central Vermont.

Attorney Woods for the petitioners said in part:

"There are now five contractors in the State who, by some arrangement not familiar to the farmers, control practically all the cars on which milk is transported to Boston. Any farmer who wants to deal with one hotel and send in say 100 cans of milk per day, is confronted by certain conditions which absolutely prohibit him from doing it. Delivery can be delayed. The milk has to be delivered in contractors' cars. The cars are not run to sections favorable to that farmer.

Direct Charge of Rebating.

"Although the Boston & Maine sent out to the farmers a schedule saying the cost of sending one to twenty cans of milk per day less than twenty miles to Boston would be five cents per can; six cents for less than fifty miles, seven cents for fifty to 100 miles and eight cents for 100 miles or more, yet milk is landed by contractors within a radius of 100 miles of Boston for only one cent a can.

"The railroads do not afford facilities to the farmers. The Standard Oil Company was fined nearly $30,000,000 for rebating. The same condition applies in Massachusetts to-day.

"The conditions absolutely prohibit the farmer from delivering milk in Boston. I do not attribute this to malicious interest on the part of the railroads or to collusion between the railroads and the contractors. But conditions are such that the farmers are unable to extricate themselves. I do not suggest any remedy myself.

"But the board should arrange some feasible plan whereby the producers could send milk, potatoes or other products to Boston."

Fitzgerald's Fight Against Moran

How He Is Using City Employes, Whose Salaries Are Paid by the TAXPAYERS

"How long, O Catiline, wilt thou abuse our patience?"

This was Cicero's indignant outburst on the floor of the Roman Senate at the culminating audacity of Catiline.

A patriotic citizen of Boston might well ask the same question of Mayor Fitzgerald after the revelations of Mr. Fitzgerald's scheme to Tammanyize Boston as it was unfolded by himself at the meeting of the chairmen of the ward committees and heads of departments, the chief salaried men of the city, at the Quincy House in secret meeting last Thursday afternoon.

Everyone knows that Mr. Fitzgerald wishes to encompass the defeat of District Attorney Moran. Everyone knows why he wishes to drive Mr. Moran out of office. It isn't that he is bold enough to have the wish to defeat a good public officer. Everyone knows that Mr. Fitzgerald prefers either of Mr. Moran's opponents, Mr. Webster or Mr. Dennison, to Mr. Moran.

Everyone knows that Mr. Fitzgerald is willing to use either of these gentlemen to accomplish the undoing of Mr. Moran. But nobody was quite prepared to believe that he had the courage at this late day, in the face of the shocking conditions revealed at City Hall, in the face of an awakened, reforming public sentiment, in the face of the example of an unusual number of upright, patriotic public servants who are now arousing the nation against evil practices—to propose the reduction of Boston to the level of a city garrisoned by ITS OWN PAID EMPLOYES.

Nobody supposed that Mr. Fitzgerald would dare to suggest sending these employes, under the pain of discharge, to the homes of our citizens to demand their choice in an important election contest.

What a magnificent spectacle is presented to Boston by the hurry and scurry of 13,000 city employes ringing the door bells of the citizens, presenting them with cards, and demanding that they make known their preferences; and that, too, all for the purpose of ascertaining whether or not the slave vote of the city machine shall be thrown to Dennison or to Webster.

How long does Mr. Fitzgerald think the city of Boston will tolerate such practices? We have moved fast in this city down to the level of Tammany during the last two years, but we haven't gone as far as this, and we are not likely to go so far for some time to come.

There is a point of view from which Mr. Fitzgerald may be somewhat excused for his desperate efforts to defeat Mr. Moran. It is largely a question of self-preservation. The latitude which he would like has been very much circumscribed by the irreproachable honesty of the gentleman who now occupies the office of District Attorney of Suffolk County.

As Mr. Fitzgerald told those present at this now notorious meeting, Mr. Moran has "annoyed and harassed" him beyond endurance. Mr. Webster, who was quite willing to withdraw his own proposal for a Finance Commission in favor of that made by Mr. Fitzgerald, and Mr. Webster, who was quite willing to be proposed by Mr. Fitzgerald for membership in a secret society, and Mr. Webster, who was quite willing to accompany Mr. Fitzgerald by special and unusual invitation upon a junketing trip last Summer—is not at all likely to prove an annoyance, or a restraint upon Mr. Fitzgerald in the improbable event of his election as District Attorney.

Mr. Webster says that all these things may be true and yet they don't prove that he is Mr. Fitzgerald's tool. Perhaps not, but they are SUSPICIOUS CIRCUMSTANCES, and a man who is a candidate for the office of District Attorney of Suffolk County should be, like Caesar's wife, ABOVE SUSPICION.

AUTO WHEELS PASS OVER BOY

Before the eyes of scores of frightened women in Newton square, Newton, Harry Woodward, aged ten, stepped out from between two electric cars and was struck by a big touring car and knocked down. The front of the machine passed over his body, injuring him badly.

Young Woodward was on his way to his house, No. 23 Pearl court, and was taking a short cut across the square.

The automobile was operated by Loren D. Towle, a Boston business man, who owns the machine. The right front wheel struck Woodward and knocked him under the car, which passed half way over his body before it was brought to a stop.

M. WITTE SEES BANKRUPTCY OF MANY THRONES

Czar's ex-Premier Predicts Financial Struggle That Will Unseat Kings.

WHAT OUR CRISIS MEANS

By Count R. V. Stackelberg
Special Cable to Boston American.

ST. PETERSBURG, Oct. 28.—As soon as the news of the financial stress of the New York banks reached St. Petersburg I called on Count Witte, ex-Premier and former Minister of Finance, anxious to know his views concerning how far it would effect the monetary market and stocks in Russia and the rest of Europe. He was reading the news in his home as I entered his cabinet, and stretching out his robust hand for greeting, he said:

"The financial condition in America is attracting not only my attention, but that of the politicians and financial specialists of the whole world. It is only the beginning of a new period in social life, and I feel safe to predict that it is for the American people the signal for their revolution of labor against capital.

"The financial crisis of America, either present or coming, will stir up the large mass of the middle and working classes, who are going to suffer more than any others, and violent conflicts between the capitalists and people of America will be inevitable.

"In America the struggle will mean a victory for the people and government ownership of railroads, banks and other more important institutions. In Europe the struggle will sweep the way of democratic republics of the nations. I may still witness the beginning of those fights here.

"The European governments are so deeply indebted to the people that as soon as a financial crisis will happen in European markets the bankruptcy of the governments is inevitable. Russia, of course, is one of the first among the most indebted governments."

MAINE GIRL IS MADE HEIR TO VAST FORTUNE

TRINIDAD, Col., Oct. 28.—After a vain attempt to effect a reconciliation with his divorced wife and two daughters, Dr. J. F. Hall, aged seventy-two, known as the hermit druggist, has passed away here, leaving the bulk of his estate of $500,000 to his favorite neice, Nina Hall, of Sangersville, Me.

One of the daughters, Miss Kate Hall, is a prominent magazine writer in Los Angeles, but she is not mentioned in her father's will. Neither is her married sister or brother James, who at present is a resident of Boston.

Hall was deeply interested in New England Coast steamships, and at the time of his death was the owner of a four-masted schooner and a number of smaller craft sailing from Maine ports. He was also interested in a string of drug stores scattered all over the country.

Among his property was also included a number of Government bonds and several pieces of valuable real estate in this city.

Dr. Hall was very retiring, and it was not known until after his death that he was so wealthy. He also kept the cause of his estrangement from his family a secret, but it is said that grief over his ineffectual attempts to gain the respect and love of his daughters made him a hermit and indirectly caused his death.

The body has been ordered sent to Bangor, Me., by the brother of the dead and father of the chief beneficiary under the will, Ezra Hall.

Child Heir to Wheelock Riches Kidnap Plot Victim

Little Lydia Victoria Wheelock, her to inventor grandfather's wealth, kidnap plot victim.

Former Janitor in Home of Millionaire in Jail Charged With Attempt to Steal Girl.

HARTFORD, Ct., Oct. 28.—Locked in a cell in the Hartford county Jail, James Latham is charged with having made efforts to kidnap pretty little Lydia Victoria Wheelock, the six-year-old granddaughter of the late Jerome Wheelock of Worcester, who was a well-known inventor and possessor of several millions of dollars at the time of his death about four years ago.

Latham knew more about little Lydia's grandparents than the child did, for she is so young that she does not know that some day she will come into a fortune of about $100,000, provided for in her grandfather's will.

Latham had been seen hanging around the Wheelock home for a long time. His actions at first were not noticed, for he appeared as an applicant as fire tender at the Wheelock. He was poorly dressed and was given a job. Later he appeared to be drinking and was discharged.

Tell of Threat to Hold Girl.

On several occasions since he was discharged from the employ of Mrs. Wheelock, Lydia's mother, Latham has been seen leading the little girl away from the house.

Early this week Latham was seen walking up and down the sidewalk in front of the Wheelock home, and, it is said, told several people in the neighborhood that he was going to take little Lydia away with him and that she would live as long as he did, but no longer.

On Tuesday he became so conspicuous that Mrs. Wheelock became alarmed. She suspected that Latham was endeavoring to kidnap the child and she notified her cousin, Arthur Sinclair, who resides at the Wheelock home, and Mr. Sinclair ran into the street just in time to see Latham, he claims, attempting to induce the little girl to go away with him.

The following day Latham again appeared, this time accompanied by a stranger. For a long time they watched the house, evidently looking for little Lydia, Mrs. Wheelock thinks.

She became so nervous that she asked Mr. Sinclair to have Latham arrested. Latham was picked up by a policeman and brought before the Police Court, his case being continued pending further investigation.

Little Lydia is the granddaughter of Jerome Wheelock, who died in Worcester a few years ago and left a vast fortune, among his bequests being a trust fund of $100,000 for little Lydia. This sum is to be held for a certain number of years.

Mr. Wheelock's fortune was estimated at several millions of dollars. By his will he gave Harvard $100,000, Clark University $100,000, city of Worcester $100,000, town of Grafton $100,000, and in addition he made bequests of $1,000 to various homes for old folks, children and invalids in and near Worcester, and also handsomely remembered the firemen and policemen of that city.

Knows Nothing of Riches.

Lydia is a handsome little girl, six years of age, with golden hair, bright blue eyes and captivating manner. For a child of her years she is remarkably bright. She is being brought up simply, her folks desiring that she should not learn to be wasteful.

Little does she know that she is the richest little girl in Hartford, and possibly in Connecticut, for her relatives have never told her of the vast fortune which awaits her on her twenty-first birthday.

It is thought, however, from remarks that little Lydia has made that Latham has told her that when she grows up she will have "barrels full of pennies," and she sometimes asks her mother about them.

But they always tell her that she does not need the pennies. She is attending the public schools now, but within a few years she will be sent to some New York or Boston private school for higher instruction.

FOUR LEAGUE MEETINGS ON LIST TONIGHT

Voters in New Bedford, Marlboro, Hudson and Boston to Hear Independents.

LAST WEEK OF CAMPAIGN

Independence League rallies will be held to-night at New Bedford, Marlboro, Hudson and Boston. Mr. Hisgen and Mr. Brown will speak at Marlboro and Hudson.

Greatly encouraged by the splendid demonstration at Clinton on Saturday night, when Mr. Hisgen, Mr. Osgood and Mr. Coles addressed the largest political meeting on record in that section of Worcester county, the League orators begin the last week of the campaign with renewed courage. Every one of them is sure that the vote will be a surprise to Massachusetts and the country.

At New Bedford, in City Hall to-night, will appear two of the State candidates, Edward J. Cantwell of Fall River and Thomas E. Finnerty of Clinton.

The Rev. Roland D. Sawyer of Haverhill and Washington A. Coles, the blind orator of Dorchester, are also on the list. Grenville S. MacFarland of Cambridge will appear if his other engagements permit.

Mr. Hisgen, Mr. Brown, Junius T. Auerbach of Boston, former Mayor Ramsdell of Lynn and Clement L. Pollock of Boston will appear at both Marlboro and Hudson, which are a few miles apart.

The Marlboro meeting will be held in Russell Hall; the Hudson meeting in the Town Hall. Each will start promptly at 8 o'clock.

In the Dudley Street Opera House, Roxbury district, Captain Thomas L. Bates will advance some of the reasons why he should be sent to the Senate by the voters of the Eighth Suffolk District.

With Captain Bates will appear Hon. William N. Osgood, League candidate for Attorney General; William P. Sawyer, Attorney-General; William P. Sawyer, canfolk, and Anson B. Edgerly, the well-known attorney.

Pick out the rally which is nearest to you and hear the truth about existing political conditions in Massachusetts.

LEAGUERS WILL VISIT LYNN AND NATICK TO-MORROW

The orators of the Independence League will to-morrow night address themselves to the voters of Lynn and Natick. The Lynn rally will be held in Odd Fellows' Hall, the largest in the Shoe City. The Natick meeting is scheduled for South Hall, Clark's block, at 8 o'clock.

Lynn will give the Leaguers a warm reception. Former Mayor Walter L. Ramsdell will preside. Mr. Ramsdell will also make one of the principal speeches.

Mr. Hisgen, Mr. Brown and the Hon. William N. Osgood of Lowell will all have something new to say to the Independence Leaguers of Essex.

At Natick will appear Washington A. Coles, the blind orator of Dorchester, whose speeches have proved the sensation of the campaign. Mr. Coles took up the work this year as a boyhood friend of Thomas L. Hisgen. He has become one of the most ardent supporters of the League in Massachusetts.

Junius T. Auerbach and Grenville S. MacFarland of Boston and Thomas E. Finnerty of Clinton, candidate for State auditor, are also booked for Natick.

The fast that the progress of the League and the great enthusiasm manifested at League rallies everywhere have brought alarm to the Republican camp and to both the Democratic camps is evidence that the League and its advocates are finding favor before the people.

The best way to find out why is to attend one of the rallies. Lynn and Natick have their opportunity to-morrow night.

HARRY THAW DENIES USE OF MORPHINE

NEW YORK, Oct. 28.—"I have not read all that Professor Lombroso has to say about my case. Therefore, I cannot say anything about his writings. He is in error, however, when he says that I used morphine. I never used morphine in my life. That is all I have to say about this subject."

So said Harry K. Thaw yesterday when asked to comment on Professor Cesare Lombroso's analysis of him.

Professor's Lombroso's report was made after a study of the expert testimony given at the trial of Thaw. The expert's conclusions were summed up in these words: "And this is exactly the case of Thaw, who was wrought up to madness of an obsessive kind which drove him to crime, this series of obsessions being founded on a congenital moral deficiency and augmented at the moment of the crime was committeed by so many other causes (alcoholism, hallucinations and perhaps also suggestions made by Evelyn), and in consequence he should be held irresponsible for his act and be detained in an asylum, being treated as a dangerous lunatic, who, if not kept under supervision, may commit other crimes."

TINY CHILD IS A 'CINDERELLA' IN REAL LIFE

Languishes in Foul, Rat-Infested Cellar While Sisters Enjoy Best of Everything.

By Boston American Leased Wire.

NEW YORK, Oct. 28.—How for three years of the pitiful seven since her birth, Martha Mohr has lived in the darkness of the cellar of her home, clothed in rags, fed on mouldy crusts, and with none but a dog and scurrying rates for playmates, was told in the Flushing, L. I., Police Court.

Only when her mother brought her out to mutilate the shrivelled body with lashings has the child got a glimpse of daylight in all that time.

Bruised, welted from head to foot by whips, half-starved, staggering feebly and blinking in the sunshine that streamed into the courtroom, the little girl cowered excuses for the barbarous treatment of her own second born.

"I never heard of worse torture," cried the magistrate in angry amazement when the story of the child's wrongs had been confirmed by Martha's father. "It is horrible! I did not think such cruelty could exist in the United States."

Sisters Wear Trinkets.

Martha is the daughter of Peter Mohr, a well-to-do contractor, and sat in court close to her two sisters, both plump, smiling, well dressed and even wearing golden trinklets. Beside them the little outcast looked a picture of pathos beyond words.

From the day of Martha's birth in 1900 the mother apparently cherished against the helpless infant a most unreasoning antipathy. Mohr, the father, said that it took the form of neglect before the baby was weaned from her breast.

She locked the child in the musty basement of the house. There was no window to let in light. The air was foul. Rats ran about in hordes, and the horror of them would have driven any ordinary girl insane with fright.

Neighbor Finds Martha.

Some days ago the neighbors heard a child weeping and one investigated. Then, enraged and shocked, he notified the police. An officer of the anti-cruelty society responded and lost no time in causing the arrest of Mrs. Mohr.

Martha, still cowering in fright, was taken in charge by the Gerry Society.

MOTORMAN 'SMASHES' CONDUCTOR; $10 FINE

Motorman Hiram Harris of the Boston & Worcester line paid a fine of $50 in the Dedham District Court to-day for assaulting his conductor, Joseph S. Maloney, on October 20, because Maloney would not consent to his running their trolley two miles down the track from Wellesley car barn to take Maloney home.

M'COY TELLS OF STRAIN IN BALLOON RACE

Aeronauts Have to Watch Wind, Sky and Weather, Says America's Pilot.

PROVIDENCE, R. I., Oct. 28.—Running a racing balloon is not simply joy, as may be the case in ballooning for fun alone. The balloonist in a race is subject to a constant strain. The racing aeronaut is like a racing yachtsman, so far as keeping constant watch on the wind, sky and weather goes. And the recent international contest will advance the balloon as a means of sport and as a military factor.

Such are the opinions of Vice-President James C. McCoy of the Aero Club of America on the international race, in which he piloted the balloon America. Mr. McCoy was one of the winners of the Lahm cup. He has been here for a week-end rest from his Summer home at Nayatt Point, and has just left here for New York. Speaking about the race he says in part:

"Ballooning in a contest is much different from a pleasure cruise in the air. Ballooning may be a pure joy when pleasure is the object, but when to the ordinary care of navigation is added the effort to navigate better than others who have started under the same conditions there is no cessation of the strain. It is a trial of skill and knowledge. One watches the weather and the instruments as closely as a yachtsman watches sky and sails."

"The interest in the West in the contest transcended even the business situation, and the result will be, I think, that next year many more people will take up aeronautics as a sport. Ballooning as a sport is entirely new in America. It has been a profession heretofore. The only aeronauts were those making ascensions for the amusement of people, and in that case the ascension and not the voyaging was the thing.

"If one is trying to make a record in a contest his fullest skill as an aerial pilot is being drawn upon every minute. The statascope, which shows the ascension and decension, seems possessed of the spirit of contrariness. Of course, it is the balloon that is doing it all, but the evidence to the eye is in that statascope indicator.

"Night sailing is easiest. The conditions are more equable and the balloon maintains its equilibrium better at night. One usually sails low then, lest the ascent with the warming up in the morning will carry one too great a height. The barograph, a recording barometer, must be consulted frequently, and, in short, the whole aim of the balloonist is to find the right current and keep in it. The balloon all the while seems bound not to stay in it."

CAR HITS CARRIAGE.

A coupe, driven by Richard Kelley, fifty-five, of Hancock street, Dorchester, and containing F. D. Clapp and Mary Smith, was struck by a South Boston car on Berkeley street yesterday afternoon. Kelley was thrown and received a severe scalp wound. The passengers were uninjured.

SZECHENYI IS COMMON NAME SAYS STORER

Former Austrian Ambassador Hasn't High Opinion of Status of Gladys' Count.

"FAMILY THICK AS FLIES"

By Boston American Leased Wire.

CINCINNATI, O., Oct. 28.—Bellamy Storer, former United States Ambassador to Austria, who is thoroughly familiar with the Hungarian nobility, indicates that he does not have a high opinion of the status of Count Ladislaus Szechenyi, the Hungarian Gladys Vanderbilt has won with her millions.

When asked if he knew Szechenyi, Mr. Storer said:

"I do not know the Count to whom Miss Vanderbilt is engaged, but I know that the Szechenyi name is very common in Austria and that they are as thick as flies over there.

"It is pronounced Ses-shaney, with the accent on the second syllable. One of the nobles of that name I know is a minister in Latere. Whether he is related to the man Miss Vanderbilt is to marry I do not know, but I suppose he is, for most of them of that name are in some way connected."

From the Austrian point of view the marriage of Miss Vanderbilt and the Count is the same as when a nobleman of high degree marries the daughter of a professor, a manufacturer or a tradesman.

The blood of the future scions is spoiled by the addition of a "burgerlica" mother, and the children from this couple can never assume the full rights which were due to the father and his ancestors. A mother of "burgerlich" descent spoils this privilege for sixteen generations.

That Count Szechenyi is not a squanderer is well established. His fifty-cent message, cabled from Newport, by way of announcing his betrothal to $12,500,000 proves it.

His whole life has been one of parsimony. He drinks most sparingly, and seldom at the expense of his own wine cellar. His cigar bill is less than that of most bank clerks. He never gambles.

DEATH OF BIRD DISTURBED BIG SOCIETY FEAST

PITTSFIELD, Oct. 28.—Crashing through a plate glass window, a plump partridge dropped dead upon the dinner table of Mrs. George H. Morgan, sister-in-law of J. Pierpont Morgan, while a large dinner was in progress at Ventfort Hall, Lenox.

In its flight it knocked a wine glass from the hand of a guest. Frightened by the crash of glass the guests leaped to their feet just as the broken-necked bird landed on the table.

The remarkable coincidence is that the game course, consisting of partridges stuffed with chestnuts, was being served at the time. Ventfort Hall is surrounded by woods. Mrs. Morgan will have the bird mounted.

SPEEDING AUTOISTS HELD UP BY WOMAN

WATERBURY, Ct., Oct. 28.—Imagining that her boy was killed by an automobile, Mary Eylan, sixty years old, haunts the path of passing cars. She held up nearly fifty persons Saturday at various times on a lonely highway west of this city, where, with broom in hand and stones in the pocket of a ragged black skirt, she stood hiding behind a stone wall.

EVANS FOR VICE-ADMIRAL

WASHINGTON, Oct. 28.—A vice-admiral will probably command the great battleship fleet on the cruise to the Pacific, and that officer is now Rear Admiral Robley D. Evans. Of course this is conditional upon Congress giving its sanction to the proposal that will be made by the President to re-establish this rank in the navy.

Rear Admiral Evans will be in command of the most powerful fleet that ever gathered under the American fleet and will command more battleships of modern type than any other officer in the world.

AGENTS' UNION GROWING FAST

The International Union of Industrial Insurance Employes is growing in numbers with astonishing strides and bids fair to become a labor organization of great importance. It was organized on July 19, 1907, in Faneuil Hall, but has in the brief time intervening spread far and wide in influence and membership. The big life insurance companies are observing its development with wonder.

Their agents in all parts of the country are organizing local branches of the union and applications for charters are pouring into the organization's general headquarters.

ARCHBISHOP JOINS RYAN; MIGHTY PLEA FOR IRELAND

Hold up the hands of the League leaders and rally to the support of the foremost Irishman in all the world, John E. Redmond.—Michael J. Ryan, president of United Irish League, at Hollis Street Theatre last night.

"Land and Liberty" summarizes the objects of Irish agitation—epitomizes Ireland's claims. For more than twenty generations her people have been denied both.

—Michael J. Ryan

MICHAEL J. RYAN.

No Catholic bishop, no Christian can be indifferent to the cruelties and wrongs suffered by a Christian nation mainly on account of its people's faith.

—Archbishop W. H. O'Connell

President of Irish League of America, Boston Prelate and Other Noted Speakers Urge Support of Party Led by Redmond.

Thousands of Irishmen and Americans of Irish ancestry or sympathies, swept off their feet with enthusiasm, arose last night in the Hollis Street Theatre, cheering again and again, when Michael J. Ryan, National President of the United Irish League of America denounced the enemies of Ireland. And among these enemies he specified, together with men of the type of Sir Anthony MacDonnell, who forced the coercion act on the country, the members of the Sinn Fein Society, who, he declared, were impeding the forward march of the nation towards freedom to the extent that they hindered the work of John Redmond in Parliament.

Archbishop William H. O'Connell, who was another speaker, received such a greeting, so full of respect, enthusiasm and evident affection, that he was visibly affected. The great audience arose as one and cheered the new archbishop loudly and long before he began to speak.

Thomas B. Fitzpatrick presided, being introduced by Monsignor O'Callaghan, who was temporary chairman.

Garrison Condemns England.

William Lloyd Garrison made a powerful speech in condemnation of England's tyrannies and injustice in the government of Ireland, and did not hesitate to characterize her course as similar to that of the United States in governing the Philippines.

"No surrender, no compromise in the fight for Ireland," was the keynote of the eloquent address made by Mr. Ryan, and which was maintained in the utterances of the other speakers.

He recounted the marvellous progress made already under the leadership of men like Redmond, Dillon and Devlin, and scouted the assertions made by enemies of the country that disunion and discord, as manifested by the growth of Sinn Feinism, menaced the advance of the great movement for Irish liberty. He said in part:

"The only phase of Irish disaffection that is at all disconcerting is that which exists here in America. To the great masses of men belonging to Irish organizations, I respectfully appeal that each, in his own way, will do what he can to bring about union of action by all. If any man or men standing in the way of union that man or those men should be compelled to abdicate. No one man, no one organization should be placed above Ireland.

"What has been done by Ireland's ambitions, industrious and skilful sons in other lands can be done in their own. New enterprises taking part of the people from the soil can be established. The old industries that once carried her fame through the markets of the world can be revived. In her rushing rivers, tumbling down to the sea, she has wealth more certain than the gold of the Californias, for they could turn the wheels for a world's trade and her great harbors could give safe anchorage for the commercial fleets of all the nations.

"Industrial revival—educational advantages—prosperity—all will follow legislative independence. And speed the day, my countrymen, by holding up the hands of the leaders of the league and rallying to the support of the pledge-bound party now led so splendidly by the foremost Irishman in all the world—John E. Redmond."

Strong resolutions, indorsing the Irish party and John E. Redmond as its leader, and pledging the sum of $10,000 to aid the cause, were read by John O'Callaghan and adopted with enthusiasm.

Some distinguished men of the platform were:

Mayor John F. Fitzgerald, Mayor Walter C. Wardwell of Cambridge, Mayor Barney of Lynn, ex-Mayor Thomas N. Hart, ex-Mayor Augustine J. Daly of Cambridge, Congressman John A. Kelliher, ex-Congressman John A. Sullivan, Hon. James Donovan, Patrick Ford of New York, Austin Ford of New York, Michael Breslin of New York, Edward J. Counihan of Cambridge, Michael P. Curran, Michael Jordan, Rev. James T. McManus, Dr. Henry V. McLaughlin, John Quinn, James E. Cotter, Fr. O'Doherty, Fr. O'Neil, Fr. James A. Murphy, Fr. T. J. Hounand of Maplewood, Dr. Timmons, Dr. Dillon and Michael J. Mains.

Archbishop Makes Brief Speech.

Archbishop William H. O'Connell said:

"I think I need make no apology, least of all to those here present, for the request I made to Mr. Ryan to be allowed to speak earlier in the programme and depart for other serious and urgent duties. I am thankful to Mr. Ryan for interrupting his speech which he was to make to you and grant me this favor. Nothing short of the most urgent reasons would be sufficient, I think, to bring me to-night.

"My occupation, my duties, are so numerous, so onerous, that working hard, oftentimes fourteen hours a day is all too little time; So that I feel that I may be excused from adding further duties to those which I have already to fulfil. But there is this very grave and very serious reason, and that is because of a great Christian nation.

"Only my Irish blood, and a request made to me by men worthy of every consideration, am I here to-night to fulfil an inherited duty.

"No Christian Can Be Indifferent."

"Few of you indeed know how deeply my venerated predecessor sympathized with everything that made for the progress of the cause of Ireland. Indeed, no Catholic Bishop, no Christian, could be indifferent to the cause of the Christian nation which has suffered mainly such cruelties and wrongs on account of the faith of its people.

"I know that I am fulfilling a solemn duty, therefore, in being present here to-night and to testify by my presence and my words my sincere and deep interest and sympathy for the great moral cause to be achieved in a moral, constitutional and legal method. (Great applause.)

"It is not necessary for me to recount the woes and wrongs which Ireland has suffered for centuries. All we children of the children of the Gael know that story well, and can never even think of it without blinding tears coming to our eyes. No one doubts the grievances and the serious wrongs of Ireland, and the one thing now before our children is how best to right them, and I say that the work of this league is decidedly in the right direction.

How to Aid Ireland.

"Without going further into detail in this matter I wish to say in one word, the sum total of all that I could say were I to speak for an hour, and that is this:

"We may be assured, we may feel certain, that if Irishmen with the proper patriotic spirit and high-minded determination, persevere patiently to tell the story of the wrongs of their country to the whole world, by their presence and free speech in Parliament, this work under necessity is sure to take enormous benefit for the cause of long-suffering Ireland."

AT 80 GUIDES BIG BALLOON IN MOONLIGHT

Prof. King Commands World's Greatest Airship on Remarkable Night Trip.

GOES 500 MILES IN 8 HOURS

By Boston American Leased Wire.

PHILADELPHIA, Oct. 28.—Professor Samuel A. King eighty years old, returned to Philadelphia to-day after completing in the largest balloon in the world his 453d successful balloon ascension.

The last ascension was remarkable in many ways outside of the great age of the pilot. It originally started at Philadelphia Saturday afternoon, but in three hours the wind had carried it only to Aura, N. J., nineteen miles away. A few hours later the balloon started on a really wonderful cruise through the air.

The giant balloon, the Ben Franklin, carried, besides Professor King, four other members of the Ben Franklin Aeronautical Society, and it is not believed that ever any other balloon carried so many persons as far as the 320-mile trip the Ben Franklin took to Dwight, Mass. Besides Professor King, the party consisted of Dr. T. E. Eldridge, Henry S. Grate, Dr. George Sinnerman and J. Lewis Meyer.

The party was greatly discouraged when compelled to land at Aura, only nineteen miles away, but they did not deflate the balloon, but anchored it to a tree with the hope that a better wind would spring up.

A little after midnight Saturday or Sunday morning a fine breeze shot out of the Southwest and that, with the brilliant moonlight was irresistible, and the party was routed from its sleep by Professor King and by 1 o'clock the balloon cast off again into space, covering 500 miles in eight hours.

BLACKMAILER SLASHES FOE OF 'BLACK HAND'

By Boston American Leased Wire.

NEW YORK, Oct. 28.—A sensational attempt to murder Frederick A. Mirti, banker, former editor of Il Progresso Italo-Americano, and the inveterate enemy of all "Black Hand" organizations, was made last night. Mr. Mirti was slashed on the head, back, arms and side with a razor, and is dying in Lincoln Hospital.

The banker, who lives in a beautiful home at No. 1,767 Washington avenue, was attacked by Frank Amenlow of No. 2,388 Broadway, who is believed by the police to one of a gang of "Black Hand" men delegated to take the life of Mr. Mirti.

On Way to Christening.

Probably the most pathetic phase of the tragedy lies in the fact that Mr. Mirti's hurry to get home was due to the fact that many of his friends had assembled at his home to celebrate the christening of a tiny son that joined the banker's family not long ago.

It was about dusk when Mr. Mirti, on his way home, took the subway. He got off at One Hundred and Forty-ninth street. An agile, vigorous man, he bounded up the subway steps and crossed the street to take the "L." Behind him, about two feet, Amenlow followed, with his hand in his pocket.

Slashes Victim Three Times.

As Mr. Mirti started to run up the "L" steps, Amenlow, with an oath, pulled the razor, leaped after the banker, and slashed him on the head. The banker staggered and tried to regain his balance. But, with the ferocity of his criminal kind, Amenlow slashed again, cutting his victim deeply in the side.

Once more he wielded the razor, this time cutting far into the banker's arm. Mr. Mirti, almost crazed with pain, dropped and rolled on the stairway, while the spectators, who had recovered their senses, rushed up and grappled with Amenlow.

The supposed blackmailer darted across the street, when a policeman sped to the scene. Knowing he would be caught, Amenlow opened the razor to the farthest angle, and, poising it carefully, hurled it into the crowd tha was running to catch him. The razor flew over the heads of a dozen men and finally sank into the knee of Max Kempenshe of No. 608 St. Ann's avenue.

MEAT-EATERS WILL RACE VEGETARIANS

NEW YORK, Oct. 28.—The question of whether meat eaters or vegetarians have the most endurance is to be settled by a walking match. Harry Mille of Newark and H. R. Sweeney of Harrison, representing the vegetarians, and William Smith of Newark and a partner, representing the meat eaters, have agreed to walk from Newark to Philadelphia on Saturday in an endurance race.

TELEGRAPHERS REMAIN FIRM

Boston striking telegraphers are firm in their determination to stick together until their demands are granted by the companies. At an enthusiastic meeting yesterday afternoon this decision was reaffirmed.

Strike benefits were paid. The treasurer reported that there is a surplus in the treasury and that sufficient contributions are coming in to meet all local demands.

News was received that Thomas A. Edison, who is still a member of the Telegraphers' Union, has sent $150 to the strikers. A committee from the Milwaukee convention of telegraphers will arrive in New York to-day to make an effort to settle the strike.

TROOPS UNDER ARMS IN STRIKE CRISIS

YONKERS, N. Y., Oct. 28.—Fearing more trouble will be caused to-day by sympathizers of the men who are striking against the Union railway, Company L, Twelfth Regiment, has been summoned from White Plains, and beside stacked guns are waiting the call to the scene of disorder.

ROBBERS LEFT $60,000

MILWAUKEE, Oct. 28.—Further investigation into the robbery of the United States Express Company of money packages amounting to $24,000 reveals the fact that bags containing $60,000 remained in the safe untouched.

DIVORCE CASES 130,000 YEARLY

WASHINGTON, Oct. 28.—According to a report by the Census Bureau 1,130,000 married couples asked for legal separation during the ten years from 1897 to 1906 or at the rate of 130,000 a year. Publication will be made in a short time of the reasons given in the complaints on which these divorces were asked.

The census was taken under a resolution of the last Congress and the figures are expected to start renewed discussion of the divorce evil in the United States. There are about forty thousand cases yet to be investigated by the Census Bureau, which will complete what is known as the field work.

BREAKS DEFOREST WIRELESS RECORD

NEW YORK, Oct. 28.—E. C. Newton, wireless operator on the steamer City of Savannah of the Ocean Steamship Company, reports that while passing Beaufort, N. C., he intercepted a message from Panama. This, it is believed, is a record achievement for the De Forest wireless system, which is used on board the steamer.

FRANCE TO COIN NICKEL.

PARIS, Oct. 28.—The French minister of finance is preparing a bill to present to Parliament at an early date calling for the substitution of nickel coins for all the copper ones now in circulation.

Our Young Men Need Some Lessons in the Art of Courtliness

By Beatrice Fairfax

THERE has been a great deal of discussion as to whether the coming marriage of Gladys Vanderbilt and Count Szechenyi is a love match or simply an alliance of money and lineage.

That, of course, is a question which only the young people themselves can answer, and it is not likely that they will take the world into their confidence.

Of one thing I am very certain, and that is, that Miss Vanderbilt is marrying a man who is most observant of all the little courtesies and politenesses that women so love.

Masters in Courtliness

ALL foreigners who lay claim to the title of "gentleman" are past masters in the art of courtliness.

Not long ago I was a guest at a country house where a young Italian was also stopping. His courtesy and attentiveness toward the women of the party were delightful to see. The instant a woman expressed the slightest wish for anything he was on his feet, anxious to be of service.

The American men in the party were all fine men, but, somehow or other, this young foreigner made them seem just a little bit crude.

He was no better man than any of them, not half as fine as some of them, but in that one respect he was superior to all. He certainly knew how to pay homage to women.

Women Prize Attentions

AND let me tell you, young men, that women think a great deal of the little attentions that make them feel as though they were guarded and looked upon as something precious.

Count Szechenyi should, however, be something more than a carpet knight.

He comes from a race noted for prowess both as diplomats and warriors. The family dates from the seventh century, and from that date to this the members have been prominent in Church and State.

Prelates, bishops and archbishops have been plentiful. They have also been worldly princes, holding large courts, retinues, small armies, etc.

At the death of George I. the family became stewards of the royal palaces in Hungary, with the title of Burgrave, which is also a secondary title of the Emperor of Germany.

So, you see, the young fiance of Miss Vanderbilt has a long line of ancestors to draw qualities both good and bad from.

Of all those doughty warriors some of them must have been men of brain and force.

Perhaps in this young twentieth century courtier the courtesy of the diplomat and the strength of the warrior will meet and make a very fine man of him.

Men make a mistake if they imagine that women like to be dominated by sheer brute strength.

Strong Should Be Gentle

WOMAN does admire manliness and strength extremely, but she also sets great store by gentleness and chivalry.

A man can cut a woman to the soul by treating her brusquely and negligently.

Very often when a man is interested in one woman he will forget the politeness due to other women, especially when the "one woman" is of the party. He will look after her comfort very assiduously and manage to forget that the other women exist. They may stumble on or off a car, elbow their way through a crowd, anything will do for them.

Now, in a certain way, that is all as it should be. He cares for that one woman and, naturally, she comes first in his thoughts and her comfort is first to be considered. But is it quite necessary to make the other woman feel like nothings?

I don't want to criticise the average young American too severely, for I think he is the finest man in the world, but I do think that in some respects he can learn a few lessons in courtesy from his foreign cousins.

If he adds a few of the courtly ways of the old world to the splendid vim of the new he will indeed be above criticism.

Timely Tips for Home Dressmakers

IN making a shirt placket cut the underlap double, about one and one-half inches wide when finished, and allow the underlap to extend one and a half inches below the placket opening, then join underlap to seam. When stitching be careful that the skirt seam does not pucker. After this turn the remainder of the lap over the hem neatly to the seam on the inside. The opposite side should be faced the same width as the lap-over side.

Easiest Way to Cut

In cutting out, some tailors say, it is better to cut with the nap up, instead of down. This method, it is said, prevents rubbed spots, the material retaining its bloom for a much longer period.

Neck of Blouse

The trouble with the necks of most blouses is caused by two mistakes of most frequent occurrence. The space between the shoulder seams in the back is too narrow. This causes a bump. The neck should be divided into three equal parts, back and two fronts. Shoulder seams should always be straight at the neckband, any alteration being made toward back or front at armholes.

In Facing Skirt

If a skirt is of heavy material or the facing is of cloth, the upper edge may be bound with a bias strip of lining, or seam binding. Then stitch along the top of the hem or facing to avoid extra thickness or turn in edge of cloth after the hem or facing of skirt is completed.

Press Seams

Use a small iron for pressing seams and open all seams. Velvet or cloth seams are finished by standing an iron with the small end up and running the seam over it quickly, using a bit of thin crinoline between the goods and the iron.

Careful Basting

If a waist has been carefully basted it will be easy to stitch the seams straight. The stitching, except on a wash gown, should be done with silk, and with a very easy tension on the machine.

EGG SALAD

Boil six eggs hard, and drop them into cold water for a few minutes. Take the whites of the eggs off, then cut the yolks into little pieces and mix with mayonnaise dressing. Take one large tablespoon of the mixture, drop into a lettuce leaf and form it into the shape of a pyramid. Cut the whites into as long pieces as possible and lay them around the yolk.

HAM TOAST

Toast a thick slice of bread thoroughly and butter on both sides. Grate some cold boiled ham, and put it in a stew pan with two hard boiled eggs chopped fine and mix a little butter, and season with cayenne and a little mustard. Heat the mixture hot and spread it on the toast.

ADVICE TO THE LOVELORN

By Beatrice Fairfax

DO NOT GO

DEAR MISS FAIRFAX:

I am eighteen years of age, and am in love with a young man three years my senior. We were keeping company for the past four months and he acted very nice to me and gave me a good time. He has not called at my house for the last two weeks, though it was usual for him to call weekly. I sent him a letter and received no answer. Shall I go to visit him and ascertain the reason for his not calling?

X. Y. Z.

NO, do not think of calling on him. He would think it a very strange thing for you to do. You have written him, and that is all that you can do. Perhaps he has some good excuse, and if so he will write or call and tell you so.

NOTHING WRONG ABOUT IT

DEAR MISS FAIRFAX:

I am a girl eighteen years of age and have been going out with young men for the past year, and the young men have been calling at my home. When leaving I have always escorted them to the door, which my friends say is very improper. Will you kindly tell if it is proper or not? And also, I have a sister of sixteen who would like to go out with young men, but my parents think she is too young. Please tell me if she is or not.

ANXIOUS.

WHILE it is not customary to accompany young men callers to the door, there is nothing wrong about it, so do not worry over what your friends have said. Your parents are quite right. Your sister is too young to go out with young men.

HARD TO TELL

DEAR MISS FAIRFAX:

About a year ago I was introduced to a young man, and last month I received a letter from this young man, and I feel as though I should have invited him to my home, but on the impulse of the the minute, when he said good-night, did not think of it. Do you think this could have offended him, as I haven't heard from him since, or do you think he cares anything for me.

M. H.

IT would have been cordial to have invited him to call, but at the same time it was not absolutely necessary. I cannot tell, my dear, whether or not he cares for you. He certainly did like you or he would not have invited you to go out with him. If you see him again ask him to call.

NO, IT WOULD NOT

DEAR MISS FAIRFAX:

I am deeply in love with a young man whom I meet quite often, but have never stopped to speak to him, although he is very anxious to speak to me. How would you advise me to let him know that I cared a great deal for him? Would it be proper for me to write and let him know?

A. M. K.

NO, my dear, it would not be at all proper for you to write to a man whom you do not know. If he is so anxious to meet you he will find some way of being introduced. If you act in a bold, forward manner he will think very lightly of you.

Dorothy Dix Says the Selfishness of Bachelors Often Explains Why Men Don't Marry

Men Are Loath to Do Away with Freedom

BY DOROTHY DIX

UNDOUBTEDLY one of the chief reasons for the decline in matrimony is selfishness. Every year men and women cosset themselves more, and require more luxuries, and these increasing demands have had a baneful influence on marriage, for both men and women alike have come to view the question not so much from the sentimental point of view as from that of personal privileges and indulgences.

The mooted question in the breast of those whose hearts have begun to flutter at the approach of possible mates is not so much, "Am I sure that I shall always love this man or woman, or that he or she will always be faithful to me?" as, "What shall I have to give up if I marry this individual?"

Cupid Loses Decision

And inasmuch as it is beyond argument that a single person is freer than a married one, and that an income divided by two is a half a loaf instead of a whole loaf to the owner thereof, the decision only too often goes against Cupid.

It is frequently said that the bachelor apartment house is the deadly and implacable enemy of the marrying woman, and this is true.

In all pioneer communities men marry early and often because a wife is necessary to secure a comfortable home. Bad boarding houses, buttonless shirts, and a touch of rheumatism have driven millions of men into marrying.

Conversely, the perfection of the science of living which is provided now for the bachelor places an almost insurmountable barrier between him and matrimony.

The man of even fairly good means may nowadays have his private apartments, where when he shuts the outer door he is as secure in his own as if he lived in a castle.

The touch of a button brings him whatever he wants to eat, cooked better than it ever is in any private family. For a small stipend he secures part of the services of a valet, who mends and presses his clothes and keeps them in a condition that makes the wardrobes of his married friends look as if they had been hauled out of the rag bag.

If he is sick, a trained nurse, who knows what to do and doesn't fuss and fidget, comes to soothe his aching brow, and gives him ten times as much chance to recover as if he were attended by a loving, but unskilful, wife.

And all of this he gets for a tithe of the money on which he could support a family in the style in which he is accustomed to live.

Society Good to Him

Moreover—and this is not to be sneezed at—the well placed bachelor is persona grata, as no married man of his position and calibre ever is in society.

He may dine out every night if he chooses.

He is besought to attend week-end parties.

He is deluged with theatre tickets and opera tickets, and every woman he knows is vitally interested in him.

If he marries, all of this is changed. It is up to him henceforth to give the week-end parties, and pay for the theatre tickets for other men, and no woman is interested in him except as an appendage to his wife, who has to be invited when he is.

Small wonder, then, that the man argues to himself that matrimony is bound to be a losing game for him, and that a mere wife is hardly sufficient reward as a substitute for all that he has to renounce. If he marries a poor girl he has got to give up his luxurious way of living, and more or less resign from the smart set of society in which he moves.

He has seen enough of his married friends' bills to know that it is one thing to buy a dress suit a season for a man who goes about, and another to purchase the chiffons and laces and velvets and other wherewithal in which a woman must be arrayed on similar festive occasions.

So, like Hamlet, he decides that it is better to endure the ills you have—and also the blessings—than to fly to those you know not of, and which, in these days of divorces, seem at least problematic.

Nor are women who are comfortably fixed any more eager to exclaim, "All for love and the world well lost." Now and then you hear, it is true, of some girl who steps down out of the lap of luxury and goes out hand in hand with some youth to struggle through poverty and hard times because of the love she bears him.

Love in Cottage.

It must be confessed, however, that girls are finding the picture of love in a cottage less and less attractive every year, and that the prospect of matrimony, coupled with the certainty of doing their own work, and wearing last year's hats and made-over dresses, is not a sufficient attractive bait to lure them into matrimony.

You see this spirit manifested even more fully among the wage earning women than you do among society girls, for the very good reason that the working woman understands what the poor man's wife is up against, while the rich girl doesn't. Nothing is more common than to hear a working girl say, "I'm not going to give up a seventy-five dollar job for a fifty-dollar man, nor exchange a soft place in an office for a hard job in a kitchen."

And, as Mr. James would remark, there you are. For love is bought with a price, and is paid for with sacrifices, and if men and women are too selfish to make them, what are you going to do about it? Nobody will dispute that, if you want to have your own way, the only way to do it is to stay single, but this sort of selfishness works havoc with the matrimonial statistics.

"THE TURN OF THE BALANCE"

A Thrilling Story of American Life by Brand Whitlock

Copyright, 1907, by American-Journal-Examiner

POLITICIANS were coming from the City Hall; here and there, in and out of the crowd, newsboys darted, shouting "All 'bout the murder!" The shops were ablaze, their windows tricked out for the holidays; throngs of people hurried by, intent, preoccupied, selfish. As Elizabeth stood there, the constant stream of faces oppressed her with an intolerable gloom; the blazing electric lights, signs of theatres and restaurants, were mere mockeries of pleasure and comfort.

And always the roar of the city. It was the hour when the roar became low and dull, a deep, ugly note of weariness and discontent was in it, the grumble of a city that was exhausted from its long day of confusion and wearing, complicated effort.

In the City Hall corner, a man with the red-banded cap of the Salvation Army stood beside an iron kettle suspended beneath a tripod, swaying from side to side, stamping his huge feet in the cold, jangling a little hand-bell, and constantly crying in a bass voice:

"Remember the poor! Remember the poor!"

She recalled, suddenly, that the outcasts at the Charities invariably sneered whenever the Salvation Army was suggested, and she was impatient with this man in the cap with the red band, his enormous sandy mustache frozen into repulsive little icicles. Why must he add his din to this tired roar of the worn-out city.

Haunted by a Face

Her car came presently, jerking along, stopping and starting again in the crowded street. The crowd sweeping by brushed her now and then, but suddenly she felt a more personal contact—some one had touched her.

She shrank; she shuddered with fear, then she ran out to her car. Inside she began again the study of faces. She tried not to do so, but she seemed unable to shake off the habit—that face seemed always to be looking out at her from all other faces, white and sensitive, with the black mark on the neck where the coat collar had rubbed its color.

And the eyes more and more reproached her, as if she had been responsible for the sadness that lay in them. The car whirred on, the conductor opened the door with monotonous regularity and called out the interminable streets.

The air in the car, overheated by the little coal stove, took on the foul smell of the air at the Charities. Elizabeth's head ached more and more, a sickness came over her.

At last she reached the street which led across to Claybourne avenue and got off. She crossed the little triangular park. The air had suddenly taken on a new life; it was colder and clearer. The dampness it had held in suspense for days was leaving it. Looking between the black trunks of the trees in the park she saw the western sky, yellow and red where the sun had gone down, and she thought of her home, with its comfort and warmth and light, and the logs in the great fireplace in the library.

She hastened on, soothed and reassured. In the sense of a certain comfort she now confidently anticipated she could get the poor out of her mind and feel as she used to feel before they came to annoy her. The clouds were clearing, the sky took on the deep blue it shows at evening; one star began to sparkle frostily, and just as peace was returning that young man's face came back, and she remembered instantly, in a flash, that it was the face of Harry Graves.

CHAPTER XVI.

ELIZABETH was right: it was Harry Graves. Four weeks before he had been released from the penitentiary. On the day that he was permitted to go forth into the world again as a free man the warden gave him a railroad ticket back to the city, a suit of prison-made clothes, a pair of prison-made brogans and a shirt.

These clothes were a disappointment and a chagrin to Graves. When he went into the prison, the Fall before, he had an excellent suit of clothes and a new overcoat, and during the whole year he had looked forward to the pleasure he would experience in donning these again. He had felt a security in returning to the world well-habited and presentable.

But one of the guards had noticed Graves's clothes when he entered the penitentiary and had stolen them, so that when he was released Graves was forced to go back wearing a suit of the shoddy clothes one of the contractors manufactured in the prison and sold to the State at a profit sufficient to repay him and to provide certain officials of the penitentiary with a good income as well.

These clothes were of dull black. A detective could recognize them anywhere. Before Graves had reached the city the collar had rubbed black against his neck.

Things, of course, had changed while he was in prison. His mother had died and he had no home to go to. Besides this, he had contracted tuberculosis in the penitentiary, as did many of the convicts unless they were men of exceptionally strong constitutions.

Nevertheless, Graves was glad to be free on any terms, and glad to be back in the city in which he had been born and reared. And yet no sooner was he back than the fear of the city lay on him. He dreaded to meet men; he felt their eyes following him curiously. He knew that he presented an uncouth figure in those miserable clothes and the clumsy prison brogans.

Besides, he had so long walked in the lock-step that his gait was now constrained, awkward and unnatural; having been forbidden to speak for more than a year, and having spoken at all but surreptitiously, he found it impossible to approach men with his old frankness; having been compelled to keep his gaze on the ground, he could not look men in the eyes, and so seemed to be a surly, taciturn creature with a hang-dog air.

Resolutions!

During the three weeks Graves had been confined in jail, prior to his plea and sentence, he had thought over his misdeeds, recognized his mistakes and formed the most strenuous resolutions of betterment.

He was determined, then, to live a better life; but as he could not live while in prison, but merely "do time," he was compelled, of course, to wait a year before he could begin life anew.

TO BE CONTINUED.

Expert Nurse Tells How to Keep Babies in Best of Health

MRS. SARAH BEHN-RANDALL, formerly Principal of the Berlin Children's Hospital Training School for Nurses, has written a series of articles for the BOSTON AMERICAN, especially addressed to the mothers of young children. In these articles she tells briefly how a baby—a child—should be treated during the first few and more important years of its life.

In each article Mrs. Randall, who has had great experience in raising children during the first five or six years of their existence, deals with some particular and important feature of the infant's care. In this, the first article, she deals with the baby's toilet—as important as anything except diet. Other articles will be on early teaching, exercise, fresh air and sleeping habits and how to break bad habits, and clothes.

Every mother should preserve these articles. They will form a quite complete treatise on the successful raising of a young child.—EDITOR.

NUMBER I.

The Baby's Bath.

By Sarah Behn-Randall.

ON the birth of a child the attending nurse, and sometimes the doctor, gives the child its first and very important bath. Subsequent to that the mother must see to the toilet of her child, and there is nothing about a child more important. Every mother should have a baby basket, which contains the baby's toilet requisites. This should be by her side when she bathes the child.

For the first two or three weeks the baby should have nothing more than sponge baths. Be certain that the water is of a temperature between 90 and 95 degrees. Do not guess at it, but get a small bath thermometer, at the druggist's, for 15 or 20 cents, and make sure. After the child is six months old the temperature of the water may be reduced gradually.

While a very fine sponge is best for the first baths a soft, old towel serves the same purpose. If the child is sturdy, no time should be lost in immersing it in water. This should be done in a small baby's bathtub in which the water is almost the same temperature as the child's body—say about 95 degrees.

Be very careful it is not too hot or too cold. In either case the baby becomes frightened and may shun the water afterward.

Sport for Baby

IF the first tubbing is pleasant to the baby, it will always want tubbing again, and that is one of the best things in the world for a baby. Later on the child will consider the tubbing as a sport and will grow to like splashing in cold water.

Mothers should be careful about permitting the child to remain in the water too long. Hot water induces a catarrhal condition, while cold water tends to cause nervous exhaustion.

From five to fifteen minutes is long enough for a child to be in the water. Two or three or even more baths a day will not harm a child. On the contrary, they will do it much good. In hot weather they cool the baby, and in cold weather induce a quiet, natural and restful sleep—a growing sleep.

If a baby should become water frightened it may be broken by letting it play in an empty bath tub for a while, then letting in pleasantly warm water, a little at a time, or it may be placed in an old flannel blanket stretched across a bathtub filled with warm water, then gradually lowered until it is covered with water.

In bathing and dressing the small infant mothers must exercise particular care not to touch the soft spot on the top of its head. No skull bone has formed there yet, and the pulsation of the brain may be plainly seen. The prick of a pin there may kill the child.

Best Soap for Baby

THE best soap to use for the baby's toilet is pure white castile, made from pure olive oil, which any reliable druggist sells. The soap must be free from alkali and salt, else it will irritate the very tender skin.

One of the most important things about the baby's toilet is the care of its mouth. Before the first teeth come the mouth should be washed out two or three times a day with absorbent cotton dipped in a solution of borax. Put a quarter of a spoonful in a cup of cool water, letting it dissolve to make the solution.

When the first or milk teeth come, commence to use a soft tooth brush gently twice daily. Be sure you remove all particles of food between the teeth.

When the child grows older it may be taught to draw a piece of silk thread between the teeth, which is better than a toothpick. If the teeth are not cleansed thus every day decay will set in.

First Visit to Dentist

WHEN two years old the child should make the first visit to a reliable dentist for an examination. Then there should be a visit every six months thereafter, so that malformations and irregularities may be corrected. Many mothers suppose the first teeth matter very little. They are very important. If decayed they may stunt the later growth of teeth, and if permitted to remain too long they interfere with the later growth, and often the latter come in irregular and unsightly shapes.

What Becomes of All the Pretty Children?

THERE are so many beautiful children, and so many ugly-looking grown-up people, a strange contrast which seems hard to explain. Look at the people in a ballroom, a theatre, or in the street, and you must be a very lenient judge if you do not admit that out of every ten you see only one passably good-looking and one beautiful.

What happens, then, to all the beautiful children? What makes them change so? What robs them of the beauty which they possessed during their first years?

To find an answer to these questions it is necessary to analyze the beauty of children in detail.

The most beautiful feature in children is no doubt their eyes—the big black, brown or blue eyes.

The eyes of children hardly grow at all. They remain exactly the same as they were; but, as the face grows bigger and fuller, the eyes grow less predominant.

It is the same with the lustre of the child's eyes. The eye is the mirror of the soul and the soul of the child is limpid, clear, unclouded. Later, when sorrows, trouble and worry come, the eyes lose their brightness, reflect the unrest of the soul and grow themselves restless, dim and conscious.

The ordinary child's mouth is touchingly beautiful. It is small, the lips curved and blood red. Later it grows big, the lips grow thin and become brownish or faintly pink. This is not only because the mouth of the child grows, but also because no other feature is thus molded by habit as is the mouth. Its color depends upon the state of health; anaemic people have pale lips.

The sturdy, pretty little chap of three years grows up and grows angular, awkward and bony, and the little cherub of a girl gets poor legs, a poor carriage, the beauty of her body is spoiled by the corset; her charm is gone.

And then the misery of the hair. What often makes children beautiful is the loose hair, falling straight or in curls over the shoulders and making them look like angels.

The boys hair is cut short when he starts to go to school, and that of the girl is twisted into unsightly braids.

Thus it happens that beautiful children grow ugly, and on the other side ugly children develop into handsome adults.

KEEP CUT FLOWERS

THESE may be kept fresh and sweet for many days if a little extra care is devoted to them. Fill the glass or jar intended to hold them nearly full with pounded charcoal. Now add enough water to thoroughly saturate the charcoal, and put in the stalks of the flowers. Add a little fresh water each day to keep the charcoal moist.

NEW YORK, Oct. 28.—There is a new claimant in the field for the distinction of being the most beautiful woman in the world. She is Mrs. Henry Hutt, wife of the artist. The claims of Mrs. Hutt are put forth by her husband. He takes issue with Harrison Fisher, who put forth the claim in the AMERICAN last week that Catherine Clements, his model, is the most beautiful woman in the world and the perfect type of American beauty, and with Artist Garo of Boston, who declares Mrs. Bertha Cushing Child to be the most beautiful.

The beautiful Mrs. Edna Garfield Hutt poses for many of her husband's pictures.

It was Massen Forrestier who was responsible for the controversy in regard to the beauty of American women. He put forth a challenge to American artists to produce an ideal type of womanhood. The challenge was accepted by Mr. Fisher, who named his model.

Holds Wife Up as Beauty.

Mr. Fisher and Mr. Hutt are friends. It was while visiting Mr. Fisher that Mr. Hutt put forth the claim that Mrs. Hutt was the ideal American woman.

"You may talk as you like, Harrison," said Mr. Hutt, "but after all your arguments I still hold my model is the most beautiful woman in the world." And to prove it the artist produced a photograph of his wife, saying:

"Here is the most beautiful woman, not because she is my wife, but because she is truly perfect according to the classical conception of beauty, which is above reproach and the one standard of perfection which outlasts every so-called type, that has its popularity only while its originator lives.

Ideals Picked to Pieces.

"Beauty does not live only in the brain of the idealist. It is neither a fad nor a fashion, it is a fact, as the noble outlines of the Venus de Milo prove by their time-defying loveliness."

The beauty of Mrs. Hutt was compared to that of Miss Clements and Mrs. Childs. The types, though widely different, were discussed and picked to pieces by the artists. To an AMERICAN reporter Mr. Hutt explained taht while he did not agree with Mason Forrestier that America could not produce a perfect type, yet he felt the Frenchman was more or less justified in the statement that we had no fixed type.

LABOR NEWS

ALLIED PRINTING TRADES UNION LABEL COUNCIL BOSTON, MASS. 96

At the meeting yesterday of the State executive board and the State legislative committee of the State branch, A. F. of L., a number of important matters were taken up, besides that of arranging a series of anti-Draper mass meetings. Secretary-Treasurer Driscoll was instructed to issue another circular letter to all labor unions, urging them to take immediate steps to do effective work against Lieutenant-Governor Draper for re-election. Another appeal will be made for contributions to the Frank K. Foster testimonial fund.

All matters referred to the executive board at the recent convention, except that of the anti-Draper campaign, was laid over until the next meeting of the board.

The new legislative committee of the State branch will hold a meeting at Wells Memorial next Thursday night. All unions having matters to come before the Legislature are requested to have a representative at this meeting. The Pearre bill, now before Congress, which covers injunction cases, will be discussed, and such changes as may be necessary to make it a State law will be made.

The striking telegraphers were given $100 as a first payment of what the State branch will give.

The quarterly convention of the New England District Council of the Sheet Metal Workers in Paine Memorial Hall yesterday, was largely attended, delegates being present from Boston, Lynn, Quincy, Brockton, Springfield, New Haven, Hartford, Stamford and Waterbury, Ct., and Providence.

President George H. Bradford of Stamford presided and John F. Kennedy, secretary-treasurer, served as secretary.

The report of the Finance Committee showed a large balance on hand, which with a large amount sent by Secretary-Treasurer Bray of the International from Kansas City, will be used to thoroughly organize the New England States. Organizer John H. Hynes of the Council will start in Connecticut this week and will tour the other New England States.

It was voted to hold the next convention the last Sunday of January in Waterbury. At this meeting there will be election of officers.

The chief topic of discussion was the "open shop," which the Employers' Association is trying to establish in New England. Ways and means were suggested, and one result was the immediate action on the part of Organizer Hynes to begin his New England tour.

A special meeting will be held Tuesday in Hollis Hall, and a number of the delegates will wait over to attend it.

Local No. 17 of the Sheet Metal Workers gave a banquet in honor of the delegates at Brigham's Hotel last night. William A. Doyle, president of No. 17, was toastmaster, and among those who spoke were John F. Kennedy, business agent of No. 17; John J. Hynes, New England organizer; John T. Partridge, Frank A. Faulkner, Edward F. X. McCarthy, secretary of No. 17; George H. Bradford, President District Council, and James E. Corprew of Quincy.

LABOR NOTES.

Quincy Wage Earners' Club will hold an open meeting at Wilson's Hall, Hancock street, Quincy, to-morrow night. James Duncan, D. D. Driscoll, John F. Kennedy and James E. Corprew have been invited to speak.

T. S. E., No. 11, received the report of its delegates to the Milford convention at its meeting yesterday. Three members were initiated and eight applications received. A vote of confidence in the new president of the Boston C. L. U. was passed, and a resolution condemning the candidacy of Eben S. Draper for Lieutenant-Governor was adopted.

At the regular meeting of the Telegraphers' Union it was reported that the large companies were again trying to get men to go back to work by sending agents to their homes to persuade them and their families. Another contribution of $200 was received from the cigar workers, making $700 in all. The meeting was addressed by Eugene J. O'Connor, William H. O'Brien, John T. Hart and others.

Patrick J. Monahan of Cambridge, who served as financial secretary of C. M. I. Union No. 1 of Boston, and who now holds an honorary card, is a candidate for Senator on the Independence League ticket in the Second Suffolk District, comprising Ward 2, East Boston, all of Charlestown, and Wards 1, 2 and 3 of Cambridge.

At the regular meeting of the I. U. of Industrial Insurance Employees, it was reported that no agent of the Metropolitan or Prudential Life Insurance Companies in Greater Boston were members of the organization.

64 HURT IN DOUBLE CAR COLLISION

PROVIDENCE, R. I., Oct. 28.—Sixty-four injured, ten of them seriously, is the record for one day on the electric car lines of this city. The injured persons were passengers on four different cars which met in a double collision.

The first was a rear end crash on the steep grade on Broadway Hill, running into Olneyville square. A Centredale and Manton avenue car with forty passengers aboard got beyond the control of Motorman John Macominski, and going at terrific speed under its heavy load telescoped the rear end of a Broadway and Elm Grove avenue car which had stopped ahead of it.

The impact was so great that the two cars locked, and the double wreck ran wild down the hill, one-fourth of a mile long, despite all efforts of the motorman of the forward car to check its speed.

Sixteen of the passengers were injured, the most seriously being Grace O'Leary of No. 206 Power street, who is believed to have concussion of the brain. Many were trampled on in the scramble to get out. The other seriously injured is Rose Larkin, Providence, probable internal injuries.

A quarter of an hour later two of the big trunk Providence-Attleboro cars came together head on at the junction of North Main street and Branch avenue, shattering both vestibules and bruising and cutting over forty of the passengers.

Several of the women fainted and had to be conveyed to their homes in hacks. The hospital ambulance and a dozen doctors were sent to the scene.

Turner, No. 463 Hancock street, Quincy. Mr. Turner, Wilson Andrews, D. C. Brown, Henry J. Peterson and J. Z. O'Brien form the committee of organization.

KILL PUGILIST IN STREET FIGHT

NEW YORK, Oct. 28.—John Oster, or "Kid Gordon," as he is generally known in sporting circles, was fatally stabbed early to-day. Martin Sweeney, who was returning with Oster from a visit in a distant part of the city, says he had just left the latter when he heard him cry for help, turned and saw him struggling with several men. Sweeney rushed to his friend's help. One of the men stabbed him in the back and the party fled, leaving Sweeney and Oster bleeding in the gutter. Oster has figured in many minor prize fights.

PORTSMOUTH, N. H., Oct. 28.—Representative C. A. 'JURY FLIRTING' CASE RESULTS IN A MISTRIAL

Disagreement Reported in Burnett Divorce Trial After Series of Mysterious Incidents.

ACCUSED JUROR IS ANGRY

By Boston American Leased Wire.

NEW YORK, Oct. 28.—Mrs. Belle Burnett, whose hypnotic, seductive eyes, it was charged, played such havoc with a juror's heart that he was dismissed, will again appear in answer to her husband's suit for divorce on the first Monday in December, the jury having disagreed in a trial replete with sensational testimony and incidents.

Arthur G. Humphreys, young broker, and another mysterious affinity were named by the husband, Charles Rogers Burnett, in his petition, and charges and counter charges brought out in the case kept interest high until the charge that one of the jurors was excused because Mrs. Burnett flirted with him created a wild scene in court, and nearly brought the trial to a sudden end.

Justice Giegerich, however, ordered the case to go on, but the disagreement of the jury made the new trial necessary.

Norman Touber, the juror in question, is highly indignant at the insinuation made by Lawyer Keating, who was counsel for Mr. Burnett, the complainant.

"The flirtation charge is preposterous," he declares. "I didn't even look at the woman. I have a wife who outshines everything in the woman line in the whole country, in my estimation."

Meanwhile the mystery regarding the truth of the charges against the pretty respondent is as far from solution as ever. Rumors of new evidence for the defence, in which a searchlight will be turned on Mr. Burnett's past life, promises to make the struggle at the next trial even more startling than before.

BERLIN SWEPT BY CRIME WAVE

BERLIN, Oct. 28.—The verdict in the Von Moltke-Harden case is expected to-morrow; but, whichever way the court decides, it is certain that the Kaiser will probe the matter to the very end, and that, no matter what new scandalous revelations may develop, he is determined to rid the German court of all at whom Harden's accusing finger pointed.

Meanwhile an epidemic of crime has swept over Berlin. Not less than twenty-four persons, among them eight girls, are missing, and this, coupled with several sensational trials that are scheduled for the next few days, keep the public mind in a state of feverish excitement.

The bride was gowned in white satin, trimmed with real lace. The bridesmaid was Miss Marie Norton of New York. The best man was Mr. John Connolley of Roxbury.

Harvard's first big game of the year in the Stadium is carded for Saturday, when the Crimson will meet the Brown kickers.

Coach Crane will start in to-day to get the Cambridge boys into shape. Of course every one on the squad keenly feels the poor showing in the game with Springfield, but no one can explain it. That is one of the mysteries of football.

The terrible slump may be a good thing for the Crimson team. After the game the players felt cheap enough, and the coaches were disgusted, to say the least. One coach remarked: "We don't know what to think, for the material is there. There will be a revolution during the practice games during the week."

The poor work of Harvard was so general that it would be hard to pick out individual weaknesses. The entire team was wofully weak on the defence.

But it's likely a different game will be seen Saturday against Brown, so there's no use of the Crimson admirers giving up yet. Coach Crane has the men and they'll make a showing yet.

VILLA NOVA TOO ROUGH, YALE COACHES SAY

NEW HAVEN, Oct. 28.—Villa Nova's first appearance here will also be that eleven's last. The Yale coaches and the faculty were displeased at that eleven's football tactics, and in consequence that team will be erased from the Yale schedule for 1908. For the same reason Penna. State was wiped off after last season's game and Columbia was dropped the previous season.

Yale's victory over Villa Nova was dearly bought. Tackle Paige wrenched a tendon in his knee and will be laid up for two weeks, and Half-back Bomar twisted his knee and will be out of play a week. Five varsity men are now in the hospital, including Wheaton, the drop kicker; Tad Jones, quarter-back, and Wylie, half-back. Wheaton's knee is mending and the coaches are now confident he will be sent into the Princeton and Harvard games, although he will not play in any other match this season.

Wylie was found, after the practice Thursday, to have fractured a small bone in his arm and he will be kept out of practice two weeks more. Tad Jones's knee was wrenched Thursday and he will lay off a week.

TUFTS WILL BE FIT FOR GAME WITH BOWDOIN

Tufts' kickers can't figure why they were beaten by Maine. They will give up trying, however, and buckle down to hard work so as to give a good account of themselves Saturday against Bowdoin. Tufts presented a patched-up team Saturday, Marr, Sheehey and Wilson all being out of the game, but even the absence of these three men can hardly account for the poor football played by the Medford team.

With the return of Marr, Sheehey and Wilson the team should take a great brace.

BIG BILLIARD MATCH.

NEW YORK, Oct. 28.—The first important professional match of the season will begin to-night at Maurice Daly's Academy, No. 1,241 Broadway, when Ora Morningstar, who defeated Sutton and Schaefer in a series of games at St. Louis, will concede Thomas J. Gallagher 600 points in 2,400. Gallagher is one of the best of the short-stop contingent, and should give his youthful opponent a hard game. The games will be divided into blocks of 400 points, continuing six evenings, play commencing at 8 o'clock.

OSBORNE PROPOSES GRADS FORM FOOTBALL TEAM

One of the most powerful arguments brought against football as a college sport by its opponents is that by its very nature it prevents men from keeping it up after leaving college. It is also alleged that very little real fun is got out of the game by those who play it, and that its participants go in for it vastly more on account of the glory and publicity attached to it than for the sport itself.

A suggestion coming from C. G. Osborne, right tackle on last year's Harvard team, in the form of a letter to the Harvard Crimson, may do much to abolish these evils of the game in so far as Harvard is concerned, provided the suggestion be carried out. Osborne was a player who enjoyed the game himself every minute he was playing. He played football purely for the fun he got out of it, and he is reluctant to abandon the game now that he is no longer in college. For the last few days he has been at Harvard coaching and playing regularly on the scrub team. Osborne's idea is for the Harvard graduates to form a football team for a few weeks every Fall, play a few practice games and end up with a game against the Harvard varsity somewhere near the middle of the season.

There is much to be said for the plan. Every year a number of graduates come back to Cambridge to coach the team and sometimes play on the second team. If these men were to be brought back at the same time a very strong team could be organized from among them. And there is enough football talent right around Boston to make it easy to organize a very strong eleven. The plan seems to be a good one from all its aspects. The grads would be enabled to keep up their football for a few weeks every Fall, they would be brought into close touch with the varsity team every year, and the varsity itself would be enabled to profit by playing regularly against the strongest possible kind of scrub team.

Osborne's suggestion was of course limited to Harvard, but if the plan proved to be a success there it might be followed by other colleges. In the future the regular Harvard-Yale football game might be the occasion of a contest on the preceding day of teams composed of graduates of the two institutions. Such a contest regularly takes place at New London, where a race for "Gentlemen's Eights" has come to be a regular part of the programme.

HURRAH! HE'S OUT AGAIN—BY CARTOONIST TAD.

MR. BAT NELSON WRITES THAT THE EAST WILL SOON SEE HIM

BY TAD.

We are going to have some swell parties here this Winter if the dope runs true. Battling Nelson threatens to come East and start things with the lightweights who are now holding down the centre of the stage.

The Dane wants another crack at Gans, and says that if he fails in that he will come East and engage in some six-round bouts, and especially wants a crack at Johny Summers, or the boy who beats him.

The following letter was written from Butte just before Nelson left for 'Frisco:

Butte, Mont., Oct. 20, 1907.

Dear Tad: I just noticed a story in the paper from Goldfield saying that Tex Rickard has accepted Jim May's bet of $20,000; that is, that Gans cannot stop me in twenty rounds. I wrote May to-night to grab the offer and give me as much of the bet as he can.

I can beat Gans in twenty rounds on the level. He bets that I will stay, and I hope he calls Rickard before the latetr changes his mind.

That Britt fight was an awful setback to me, but that night I had a heavy meal before the go and it put me out of the running altogether.

I saw Nolan since writing you and told him that I didn't need his services any longer. I think I can attend to my own affairs. I am to box a few fellows up north soon, and after that will be the guest of Clarence Parker of the Leland Hotel of Minot, N. D. We are going on a hunting trip for two weeks, and I expect to have the time of my life.

I will come East in the early part of December, unless I get on with Gans, and will do some six-round boxing. I see that Johnny Summers is there, and I want to get on with him or the boy who beats him. I want Summers particularly, just to show him what a four-flusher he is. He said he chased me out of England. Well, I'll be there in the ring, and we will see who will do the chasing.

Be sure and get right on this fellow Packy McFarland, because he can beat most any boy in the country at 133 pounds. He is all the cream and candy. You watch.

I am taking the best of care of myself, going to bed at 10 o'clock every night and leading the real simple life.

Remember me to my friends, and tell them that I will be there in a month or so.

Yours truly, BATTLING NELSON.

* * *

Jack O'Brien thinks it rather queer that Bob Fitzsimmons should stand out as an angel and denounce him as a fakir and a disgrace to the ring.

"Why, Fitzsimmons admits himself that he faked in his fight with Jim Hall. Where does he come in to knock me? I admitted mine, but am sorry for it, and willing to show that I am a champion and win on the level."

People in glass houses shouldn't be quite so reckless with their missiles.

* * *

Owen Moran says that in his opinion Gunner Moir will give T. Burns the trimming of his life if they ever meet.

"Moir is a great, big fellow," says Moran, "and weighs 220 pounds. He is the most aggressive fellow you ever saw, and has a punch that is a killer. I know Americans think him a quince, but every cent of my money goes on him when they meet."

LARRY CONLEY SAYS HE WILL BEAT RUSSEL

Larry Conley of South Boston is highly enthusiatstic over the opportunity that he has to meet Unk Russell of Philadelphia at the Winnisimmet Athletic Club in Chelsea to-morrow night, and he assures all his friends that have talked with him about the match that he will make good. Speaking about the match yesterday Larry said:

"This is the chance that I have long desired, and I am satisfied that I can whip Russell well inside the limit. I saw him box Jimmy Briggs recently in Chelsea, and while he showed himself to be a tough man at all stages I was convinced that night that I could beat him. If I am successful in the coming bout I shall go right after Honey Mellody for the welterweight championship, and I am positive that I have it on him at the welterweight limit. I am in good shape at present, as I have not been idle since the bout was first proposed to me, and I will show some of the local sports that I can hold my end up with the best in my class."

GANS REFUSES TO MEET BAT

BALTIMORE, Oct. 28.—Joe Gans, colored lightweight champion of the world, has received a letter from Jim Crawford, manager of the Colima Athletic Club, offering him a match with Battling Nelson, but as Crawford did not name any guarantee, Gans passed the proposition up.

The negro still sticks to the statement that he will retire from the game. He says he is getting old and does not like the idea of training hard for a mill. He is comfortably fixed, says he has $35,000, owns several houses and expects his new hotel will be a paying venture.

SAWYER TO BOX CONNOLLY.

BANGOR, Oct. 28.—Manager Conners of the Arena, Bangor's new club, has signed Tom Sawyer of Rockland and Bartley Connolly of Portland, welterweights, to box six rounds here on Wednesday night. These men put up a hot go in Manchester, N. H., a few nights ago, and a lively mill is expected here.

GLOVER WILL AGAIN TRY TO BEAT DESHLER TO-NIGHT

This is a big week for the local fight fans, as there will be plenty doing around the Hub, and several of the best glove artists in New England will be seen in other places.

The second meeting of the Cooper Social and Athletic Club of Bowdoin Square to-night will introduce as a main bout performer, for the first time in this city or vicinity, Billy Glover, South Boston's fast lightweight. Glover will meet for the fourth time Dave Deshler.

The big contest of the week is for the featherweight championship to-morrow night at Los Angeles between Abe Attell, the holder of the title, and Freddie Weeks of Denver, Col.

On Friday Honey Mellody will meet Frank Mantell at Dayton, O. While Honey has the reputation, Mantell is very promising and has a good punch, and the indications are that the bout, which is for twenty rounds at 145 pounds at 3 o'clock, will produce a very good contest.

Mike (Twin) Sullivan seems to be back at his old idea of picking up soft ones, for he has a match with Frank Fields at Goldfield, Nev., on Friday.

Jack Johnson and Jim Flynn are booked for forty-five rounds at Ocean View, Cak., just outside of San Francisco, on Saturday afternoon.

AMERICAN ASSOCIATION MAY INVADE FOUR NEW WESTERN CITIES IN SPRING

CHICAGO, Oct. 28.—The rampage of the American Association has developed into something more pretentious than the baseball magnates had at first supposed. The report first came of the assault on the North Side, the association making overtures for Billy Nieson's Gunther Park. Now it has been learned that other parties, with both money and influence, have joined in the fight and want to put association clubs in St. Louis, Cincinnati and Pittsburg.

The men are a Mr. Martin and a Mr. McMahon, who came to this city as soon as they heard of the proposed plan of the association to invade big league holdings.

They drifted quietly into town and seemed to just listen a while before they said anything.

Both were sitting in a downtown popular restaurant, and very accidentally Jimmy Callahan, Jake Stahl and Billy Niesen were seated at a table next to theirs and were talking of the proposed invasion.

Association Plans.

Then the two St. Louis mysteries butted in and made themselves known, and the talk lasted from the dinner hour until nearly 11 o'clock. Little is known of these parties, but they are said to have great financial backing and plenty of nerve to go through with the plan of putting the association in the four Western cities now in the big leagues.

To show that they meant business, they declared they already have the site for the park in St. Louis and it is in another part of the city from the National and American League grounds, so it would not hurt them or be hurt by them.

They also stated that an option had been secured on a piece of property in Cincinnati suitable for a ball park, and the two men have now departed for Pittsburg to investigate the situation there.

Have Plenty of Aid.

So it seems the association has plenty of outsiders ready to help them in their proposed scheme to make themselves big leaguers. In the meantime the present association magnates are keeping under cover as far as the public are concerned, but are inwardly rejoicing at the public sentiment in favor of the proposed move. They will do nothing until they have their Fall meeting before the National Association of Minor Leagues down in New York before long, and then their demands will be put up to the association. If the association rejects them, which seems quite evident now, they will declare themselves outlaws at once and the war will be on.

Most of the baseball enthusiasts of Chicago think the city could support another professional club, especially should it be on the North Side, and most of the people want to see it come here. It would not hurt Comiskey's and Murphy's teams a bit, and it would help the American Association a whole lot.

If a park could be planted in St. Louis in a territory far from the present parks, it would not harm those big leaguers, for St. Louis is a great baseball town, too.

In Cincinnati and Pittsburg the big leaguers would not be injured, because there is now but one big league team in each of those cities and the schedule of the association would be arranged to avoid conflicts.

WOULDN'T TAKE $36,000 FOR GEN. WATTS

LEXINGTON, Ky., Oct. 28.—General Watts, 2:06¾, the champion three-year-old trotter of the world, by Axworthy out of Carpet, by Prodigal, has not been sold, and unless General C. C. Watts changes his mind he will not part with the speedy young horse just now.

The offer that was made to General Watts for the colt here by a representative of William Simpson of the Empire Farm, New York, was $36,000.

"That will not buy him," said General Watts.

"How much, then?" asked the other.

"I will not put a price on him just now," replied the General.

This ended the interview, and before his departure for his home at Charleston, W. Vt., General Watts instructed Mike Bowerman to send the son of Axworthy to his farm in West Virginia to spend the Winter. The colt is still in Bowerman's stable at the Fair Grounds and will be shipped to the farm after he is let down, which will likely be at the end of a fortnight.

General Watts probably never had a better investment than this colt. He gave Senator Bailey $1,800 for him, and this year he has earned him net about $19,600. He can well afford to kepe 'aim.

OFFERS $35,000 FOR SILIKO

LEXINGTON, Ky., Oct. 28.—Thomas Grady, who came here to take charge of the trotter Jack Leyburn, yesterday wired Edward and Joseph Madden an offer of $25,000 for Siliko, but the answer was that the price is $35,000. Jack Leyburn is to be used for matinee purposes, and was shipped last night to his new owner, at Philadelphia.

CHAMP RUN AT PRINCETON.

PRINCETON, Oct. 28.—Long-distance runners of the various colleges in the Intercollegiate Cross Country Association are actively preparing for the annual championship run of the association, which will be held over the Princeton course Wednesday, Nov. 27.

ABE ATTELL 2 TO 1 CHOICE OVER WEEKS

By Boston American Leased Wire.

LOS ANGELES, Oct. 28.—Abe Attell and Fred Weeks both report they are fit for their bout to-morrow.

Attell is more than a little sore at Weeks because Freddy knocked out Attell's brother Monte in six rounds.

Any boy who is good to hammer through Monte's guard and drop him for the count in six rounds is quite a fighter, and Weeks' showing in his work has made him scores of supporters.

He wades straight in, never swinging a punch, but whipping them all straight from the shoulder. His most effective wallop is a right to the jaw and at the infighting he never stops pegging away at the other fellow's mid section.

It will be remembered that Brooklyn Tommy Sullivan, the only man who ever knocked Attell out, whipped him by boring in for five rounds, paying no attention to Abe's head, but lashing him in the ribs and the stomach.

Durand is betting that Weeks will win by a knockout inside of fifteen rounds and the betting on the fight is 2 to 1 with Attell a top-heavy favorite.

New System Cheap and Has Been Big Success in Gotham.

CROWDS AT AUTO SHOW

BY J. C. KERRISON.

NEW YORK, Oct. 28.—The attendance at the motor show during the early hours of this morning has been such as surely presages the continuance of the motor boom. Almost as soon as the doors were opened this morning there was an influx of visitors such as has not been experienced since the show opened on Thursday last.

It seems as though the out-of-town dealers had awaited until this morning before putting in an appearance in this city, they in the main preferring to attend to their week's end business before taking on the strenuous work of determining just what line of cars they will handle in the very near future. This seems particularly true of the New England dealers, who were few and far between until this morning. Now, however, they are coming into town in large numbers, and before the week expires it is safe to say that the majority of New England dealers will be seen here.

Another Show to Open.

On thing which has perhaps operated on the presence here of out-of-town agents and dealers is the fact that the licensed show follows so close upon the heels of this one, there being an interval of but a day between the closing of the palace and the opening of the Garden show next Saturday. This has had a tendency to keep the trade attendance down to a minimum until to-day. In the crowds seen at the show this morning the majority were really interested in cars, and asked such intelligent questions as to indicate a desire to purchase. The strengthening of the money market seems also to have had a wholesome effect, for while the trading has been good the present indications are that it will greatly improve in the next three days.

There is a strong possibility of the taxicabs being introduced into Boston by or before next Spring. The success which has greeted the use of these cars in New York city has been remarkable and of such a character as to impress a certain party of Bostonians with the possibilities of such a system in Boston. These gentlemen absolutely decline to discuss the proposition in public, but it is an absolute fact that they are now investigating the cost of such a system, and have asked one Boston dealer to submit an estimate on the cost of twenty taxicabs for delivery in Boston early in March next.

These little taxicabs are doing great service here, and furnish transportation at a minimum cost, the rate being thirty cents for the first half mile, and ten cents additional for each quarter of a mile thereafter, whether there be one or more passengers. The rate is based on a milage basis rather than on the number of passengers carried. The gentlemen interested in the proposed Boston taxicab company prefers at this time to keep their identity and individuality concealed, but I personally know that they are capable of carrying out any plans they make undertake.

Few Tire Novelties.

Unless the big manufacturers are holding something in reserve, there will be few tire novelties marketed during the coming motor year, judging from the displays in Grand Central Palace.

All the large concerns are "mending their fences" and profiting by mistakes of previous years, so it is safe to say that the general product will be better than ever before, but th actual non-puncturable tire is still a myth, as far as actual practical work is concerned. Nor has the satisfactory substitute for the pneumatic tire been discovered.

As long as the best rubber obtainable will give way in time under the strain, and automobilists have come to look on tire troubles as a necessary evil of the sport, manufacturers have ben their energies toward making tires that may be quickly replaced when the puncture does occur, and to the development of a shoe that will stand the pressure and still keep a car from skidding in wet weather.

Two firms are showing a steel studded, rubber-tired shoe that has been tried and not found wanting in the anti-skidd class. But the life of this device is less than half of the same tire without the steel studs. In taking up the tremendous weight of heavy cars and preventing slipping on "glass" pavements the structure of ruber and cotton suffers.

Minor Improvements.

Many minor improvements will be noted in the detachable tires and rims. The principal involved is muhe the same in all these inventions, an expanding steel ring being utilized to clinch the tire on the rim.

So it is found that the tire manufacturers regard the Palace show as a meeting place to renew friendly relations with both the trade and individual customers rather than an exhibition place where startling novelties may be introduced. As in all other branches of the industry, the tendency in tire manufacturer is to standardize the product.

Tire trouble, the bugbear of motoring, is not forgotten by the motorists who visit the show. The more astute ones spend a good deal of time around the exhibits, looking for something new. It is true that there is not very much to see about a tire except from the expert point of view. There is a predominating feature of the tire dispalys this year, however, in the showing of quick, detachable contrivances. Makers, such as those of the Diamond, Fisk, Goodyear, G. & J., Hartford, Godrich, are showing tires that are mechanically removable, and demonstrations are given to show how quick and easy are methods. Some new treads are shown off in new types.

Reemovable Rim.

While the removable rim, which can be taken off with the punctured tire on it and replaced in a jiffy by a new rim with a hard tire, was originally an invention for racing cars, the idea has developed and it is plainly noticeable at the present show that a newly aroused interest is being taken in these things on the part of private car owners. At the space of the Fisk Rubber Company shows a truly wonderful specimen of the advance made in this direction. The Fisk removable rim with its tire is taken off and replaced by an inflated tire in the actual time of seventy seconds, and it can be done by any novice with a wrench. This does not allow for the time that would be taken to jack up the wheel, of course, but with this included the replacement can be made by any one in four minutes, and the blessing of it all is, without manning the pump.

This rim is fitted with the Fisk mechanically fastened tire, which is up to date the only one produced to obviate the danger attendant upon tires coming off the rim. The Fisk mechanically fastened tire is detachable, but [illegible] with bolts that whether inflated or flat, no combination of circumstances can cause it to come off accidentally. Something new in the Fisk line for 1908 are clincher tires and quick detachables to fit any rim, although the mechanically fastened article continues to be the distinctive Fisk leader.

PARDELLO IN SHAPE.

PIANOS AND ORGANS.

ROXBURY STORAGE SALESROOMS
WHERE PIANOS ARE SACRIFICED

Fighting the Piano Trust

The name "Piano Trust" sounds big, looks powerful and frightens a good many small piano dealers. They wouldn't dare to cut the price on a "Piano Trust" instrument. We have been cutting their prices for months—cutting—slashing—and actually slaughtering their prices, and have been whipping the Big Piano Trust representatives in every N. E. State. We confess that we are making no money doing it, but we are still in the ring, and seling almost any make of high-grade pianos, new or second-hand, at prices that make the big Piano Trust wince.

A Piano Sale here is always a sacrifice, always a bargain sale, always a mark-down sale. The very nature of the business, as the public knows, is one of sacrifice. The business here is not conducted like the business of a regular Piano store down town, where they are expected to make a profit on each piano—where they get their profit DIRECTLY out of the sale of pianos. We don't let any piano loaf around on the floor of the Roxbury Storage Salesrooms—it comes in DUE TIME, a sacrifice tag is clapped on to it, be it high grade, low grade or middle grade, and it is sold to the first man or woman who wants it for the price marked on the tag—not a cent more or less. The selling price is made on the Roxbury Storage Salesrooms' "Expense percentage" basis and is figured to let the accounts out clean and clear without regard to profit—so you can see easily by this statement how these sales must necessarily be sacrifices. Someone's loss is your gain.

THE BOSTON AMERICAN
80 AND 82 SUMMER ST., BOSTON, OCTOBER 28, 1907

The Government Adopts Another Hearst Measure

THE Government is asking the San Francisco commercial organizations for data regarding the exactions in rate charges via the Isthmus. The War Department expects to send a lot of coal and munitions that way for the use of the battleship squadron and has been confronted by the Pacific Mail Steamship Company's rates. Now the Government is figuring on the proposition of putting Federal vessels on the run to compete with the Pacific Mail.

Mr. Roosevelt's administration is again entitled to congratulations for accepting a good suggestion.

On January 21, 1905, William Randolph Hearst introduced in Congress a bill providing for the Government purchase of all the shares of the Panama Railroad Company, and in this bill the further provision was made that

The Isthmian Canal Commission, which for and on behalf of the United States is hereby authorized and directed to maintain, operate and develop said property as a railroad and steamship line for the common carriage of passengers and freight at reasonable rates between the ports of San Francisco and New York and between such other ports as in the judgment of the Isthmian Canal Commission may be deemed expedient.

Section 9 of this bill further provided that

For the purpose of extending the service hereinbefore provided for, the Isthmian Canal Commission is hereby authorized and directed to use and put into immediate service any transport or vessel owned by the United States, suitable for such service, but not now required for the use of either the War or Navy Department.

The late and long-headed Mr. Collis P. Huntington foresaw that, with a Federal line in operation, competing via the Isthmus, it would be impossible to maintain his celebrated "All the traffic will stand" system of charging and so he got control of the Panama route.

The influence of the transcontinental railroads did not cease when, after forty years, the people finally triumphed over lobbies and yellow dog funds and the construction of the Panama Canal was authorized.

The effect of this bill would have been to put an end to the outrageous transcontinental freight charges, and it is just as important that the price of living to a great number of Americans should not be increased as that coal for warships should be transported at a reasonable price.

The steps to use the Government's opportunity in Panama must be applauded.

The Monument Cutter and the Prison Warden

Both Are Kept Busy by the "Good Fellows" They Have to Provide for

You have seen the monument cutter in his granite-littered yard, near a cemetery, chipping industriously at the little and big headstones which are soon to rise like petrified trees in the great quiet enclosure across the street.

Did it ever occur to you that most of the pretty sentiments he inscribes on many of the stones say, in effect, that the gentleman who is to occupy the space beneath it was a "good fellow"?

The fact that the departed was a good fellow is generally what put him in need of the headstone, and it is only fitting that a few carefully selected words with that import should be carved on it.

For the cemeteries, like the jails and prisons, are filled with good fellows, who have been good fellows to all their acquaintances and VERY BAD FELLOWS TO THEIR WIVES AND CHILDREN.

It is so easy to make delightful new friends by spending money on them, and so pleasant to listen to their praises, that the temptation to be "one of the boys" is too great for many young men to resist.

To be a good fellow, of course, it is often necessary to let your wife worry about paying the grocery and meat bill, to let her patch the children's clothes, and humiliate herself in the shoe store in order to obtain credit to get shoes for them.

It is also necessary to borrow from old friends in sums ranging from ten to a hundred dollars, in order that the new friends may be properly entertained at the nearby saloons.

Then the good fellow's new friends depart mysteriously. The unfeeling butcher and baker and grocer grow tired of bullying his wife, and bully HIM for a change.

If he is an incurable good fellow, and is not troubled by a conscience, he begins to borrow from his employer—without embarrassing that gentleman by consulting him about it.

That lands him in jail, and the warden, who has hundreds of good fellows in his charge, gives him a number and sends him to his cell or to the interesting pursuit of breaking rock.

Then there are doctors' bills, and undertakers' bills, and, last of all, those who are left have to scrape together enough money to pay for the inscription, "Here Lies a Good Fellow," or some similar sentiment, which the monument cutter hews in the stone, smiling knowingly the while.

If some of the good fellows who so generously spend their money on the entertainment of others, and borrow the money to do it with, or stint their wives and children for drink and dinner money, could walk now and then through the cemeteries, and translate the inscriptions into plain

HE WAS A GOOD FELLOW
AND THAT IS WHY HE IS HERE,

there would be more happy homes and fewer happy saloon-keepers in the world.

Little Editorials from the People

ASKS SOME PERTINENT QUESTIONS

Editor BOSTON AMERICAN:

In the Saturday issue of the Boston Post an editorial refers to the Independence League party, and states that said party is a corporation composed of a president and board of directors. Among other things, it says: "If the Independence League as a corporation is upon the official ballot, why should not the Boston & Maine Railroad seek a place there, or the New Haven Railroad, or the New England Telephone Company, or the Boston Elevated Railway Company, or the Standard Oil Company seek a place there, or any other corporation?"

When the Boston Post compares the Independence League to these other corporations it is trying to deceive the voters of this State and it knows it. It also knows that all these corporations are represented on the official ballot under the name of the Democratic party, and their standard bearer is Mr. Whitney.

Why did the Boston Post support Colonel Gaston a few years ago and recommend his election? Why didn't the Post notify the Democratic voters that Mr. Gaston was at the head of the worst corporation in the State and tell them not to vote for him?

Why doesn't it tell the voters that Mr. Whitney is interested in all the big corporations in this State, and not in the people?

Why didn't the Post support Mr. Moran last year as the Democratic candidate and not give Governor Guild three times the space in its news columns it did Mr. Moran?

The Boston Post is advocating the election of Mayor Fitzgerald's candidate, Mr. Dennison, who has done nothing but throw mud since he took the stump and who is losing votes by the hundred every time he speaks.

Voters of Massachusetts and Boston, don't let the Post deceive you. Vote the Independence League ticket and re-elect the "Man Who Dares" and "Plain Tom" Hisgen. Yours respectfully,

JOHN McLAUGHLIN.

The Diary of an Explorer

By C. B. Quincy

AFRICA is a bigger place than I thought, and singularly lacking in accommodations. Ground is about the only thing that's plentiful, and that's not much joy to a tired and hungry man. Will write a monograph on it for the Royal Geographical Society.

Curious how different a lion looks when he's out of a cage. Never experienced any peculiar emotions when looking at lions in a menagerie, but to-day I ran five or six miles on seeing two at a distance. They looked positively forbidding.

Lions came during the night and took away three natives from the camp. I was going to give the night watchman a talking to, but it appears the lion got him while he was asleep. Think of returning to the railroad; there is a sense of security in a train, for one can always leave the lions far behind, and besides it is much easier to explore from the observation windows.

Discovered a large lake to-day with several steamboats on it, one of them the boat of the government survey. Told them I should call the lake Smyth, after myself, and they rudely replied that the lake had been known as something Nyanza for the past seventy years. I said that made no difference, and I have put the lake in as Lake Smyth (also Nyanza).

It seems the bird was a Plymouth Rock, belonging to an American planter, who had imported it at some trouble. I expressed my regret, but pointed out that an explorer could take no chances of losing a new species to science and President Roosevelt. The planter readily understood, and advised me to explore to the eastward, as the country was more settled there and the farmers had more hens.

Shot a fine specimen of deer to-day.

Deer turns out to have been a young Jersey cow. The owner unleashed several dogs on me and my natives ungallantly deserted me.

Am now up a tree meditating upon the hardships of the pioneer adventurer.

Edward Bok, of the Ladies' Home Journal, has written to a book review asking for information about the legend which associates the bat with literature. Do you know anything of this association? HOPELESS.

The legend is well known. Poe, a literary fellow of some renown, went on a bat frequently. So did other makers of literature from the earliest times to the present.

Ella Wheeler Wilcox

One of Us Two

By Ella Wheeler Wilcox

THE day will dawn, when one of us shall hearken
In vain to hear a voice that has grown dumb.
And morns will fade, noons pale, and shadows darken,
While sad eyes watch for feet that never come.

ONE of us two must some time face existence
Alone with memories that but sharpen pain.
And these sweet days shall shine back in the distance,
Like dreams of Summer dawns, in nights of rain.

ONE of us two, with tortured heart half broken,
Shall read long-treasured letters through salt tears,
Shall kiss with anguished lips each cherished token,
That speaks of these love-crowned, delicious years.

ONE of us two shall find all light, all beauty,
All joy on earth, a tale forever done;
Shall know henceforth that life means only duty.
Oh, God! Oh, God! have pity on that one.

Bobbie's Essays

By William F. Kirk

YESTERDAY when I went to skool my teecher sed to me, Bobbie, a grate & rich man has offered one thousand dollars for the best essay as to why President Roosevelt shud be elected a third (3rd) time. Why dont you go after the munny, Bobbie, sed my teecher. You are a grate essay riter, the best boy comic in yure family, my teecher sed. So here is my essay:

President Roosevelt, the gratest president since 1901, was born in the United States. As a baby he showed grate briteness, & his first teeth caim when he was about three (3) months old, they did not cum one (1) at a time, but all in a bunch like bad luck. When he was a vary littel baby he fell out of his cradel & climbed up a pile of pillows. Look at that, sed his mother, som day he will climb to grateness or will charge up the hill in the face of the enemy's fire, or anyway part way up the hill, his mother sed. Just then the poor littel baby fell off the pillows & the colored gurl helped him back on top of the pile & ever since then he has liked colored peepul, no wonder.

I think President Roosevelt should be elected for a third (3d) time beekaus he is after the trusts & it taiks at least three (3) terms to git close enuff to the trusts to grab thare coat tails, the trusts are vary fat but thay can run pritty fast & thay are good dodgers.

Sum of my reasons for the president gitting a third (3d) term are as follows:

1.—He saived our country in the dark days of the Spanish war, when the bullets was whistling over the heds of the boys in blue & the boys in yellow, wich is the Ruff Riders.

2.—He is a good fiter, beekaus he boxed with Mister Donovan, the boxing master & Mister Donovan dident hit him vary often except on the teeth wich was well trained. He also boxed with Mister Taft & Mister Root & beat them both, he hit Mister Taft on the stummick & Mister Root on the dollar plexus, wich is rite over the pocketbook & close to the heart.

3.—He is a grate lover of Nature & animals, having killed many bare beekaus he was afrade they wud starve in the Solid South if thay had to spend the winter thare, he knows all about wolves & foxes, beekaus he was Poleece Commishuner in New York. He knows all about Mustangs, beekaus in his old wild Western days he often rode many weery miles on the range with six (6) cowboys on one side & five (5) cowboys on the other side. I lu the boundless West, sed Mister Roosevelt, whare the stars twinkles britely in the hevvens & the saddel is our pillow by nite in the grate West, says Mister Roosevelt, a man feels his soal expand until he seems to be the bigest & grandest & gratest of all the rulers of the earth.

4.—He never drinks hard drinks, he mite drink a cocktail but a cocktail isent a hard drink to drink & thare is lots of nurrishment in the cherry.

5.—Beekaus he wants what he wa nts, wich is a third (3d) term.
